Therese Raquin Émile Zola,2021-01-01 First published in the year 1867 French writer Émile Zola's novel Therese Raquin tells the story of a young woman unhappily married to her first cousin by an overbearing aunt who may seem to be well intentioned but in many ways is deeply selfish Therese's husband Camille is sickly and egocentric and when the opportunity arises Therese enters into a turbulent and sordidly passionate affair with one of Camille's friends Laurent

Our Dramatic Heritage: Classical drama and the early Renaissance Philip George Hill,1983 An anthology of European drama Includes the Oresteia Oedipus the King The Trojan Women Everyman and The Mandrake among others Each play is preceded by a critical introduction

Therese Raquin Émile Zola,2024-02-10 This volume Therese Raquin was Zola's third book but it was the one that first gave him notoriety and made him somebody as the saying goes While still a clerk at Hachette's at eight pounds a month engaged in checking and perusing advertisements and press notices he had already in 1864 published the first series of Les Contes a Ninona reprint of short stories contributed to various publications and in the following year had brought out La Confession de Claude Both these books were issued by Lacroix a famous go ahead publisher and bookseller in those days whose place of business stood at one of the corners of the Rue Vivienne and the Boulevard Montmartre and who as Lacroix Verboeckhoven et Cie ended in bankruptcy in the early seventies La Confession de Claude met with poor appreciation from the general public although it attracted the attention of the Public Prosecutor who sent down to Hachette's to make a few inquiries about the author but went no further When however M Barbey d Aureville in a critical weekly paper called the Nain Jaune spitefully alluded to this rather daring novel as Hachette s little book one of the members of the firm sent for M Zola and addressed him thus Look here M Zola you are earning eight pounds a month with us which is ridiculous for a man of your talent Why don t you go into literature altogether It will bring you wealth and glory Zola had no choice but to take this broad hint and send in his resignation which was at once accepted The Hachettes did not require the services of writers of risky or for that matter any other novels as clerks and besides as Zola has told us himself in an interview with my old friend and employer the late M Fernand Xau Editor of the Paris Journal they thought La Confession de Claude a trifle stiff and objected to their clerks writing books in time which they considered theirs as they paid for it One Thursday Camille on returning from his office brought with him a great fellow with square shoulders whom he pushed in a familiar manner into the shop Mother he said to Madame Raquin pointing to the newcomer do you recognise this gentleman The old mercer looked at the strapping blade seeking among her recollections and finding nothing while Therese placidly observed the scene What resumed Camille you don t recognise Laurent little Laurent the son of daddy Laurent who owns those beautiful fields of corn out Jeufosse way Don t you remember I went to school with him he came to fetch me of a morning on leaving the house of his uncle who was our neighbour and you used to give him slices of bread and jam All at once Madame Raquin recollected little Laurent whom she found very much grown It was quite ten years since she had seen him She now did her best to make him forget her lapse of memory in greeting him by recalling a thousand little incidents of the past and by adopting a wheedling manner towards him that was quite maternal Laurent had seated himself With a peaceful smile on his lips he replied to the questions addressed to him in a clear voice casting calm and easy glances around him Just imagine said Camille this joker has been employed at the Orleans Railway Station for eighteen months and it was only to night that we met and recognised one another the administration is so vast so important As the young man made this remark he opened his eyes wider and pinched his lips proud to be a humble wheel in such a large machine Shaking his head he continued Oh but he is in a good position He has studied He already earns 1 500 francs a year His father sent him to college He had read for the bar and learnt painting That is so is it not Laurent You ll dine with us I am quite willing boldly replied the other He got rid of his hat and made himself comfortable in the shop
