Those Days In Muramatsu One Woman's Memoir Of Occupied Japan:

Those Days in Muramatsu Yumi Goto, 2014-01-22 In the aftermath of the Pacific War and Japan's capitulation Mrs Yumi Goto and her family lived in the small community of Muramatsu where they had relocated to get away from Tokyo Yumi Goto was an English speaking graduate of one of Japan's top universities for women and when a contingent of American soldiers was sent to Muramatsu as a garrison force she became an interpreter The sudden influx of more than 1 800 Americans into a rural Japanese community was potentially traumatic and their imminent arrival made the townspeople depressed and fearful To everyone's surprise they found the soldiers to be open hearted and humane and the two sides co existed peacefully Those Days in Muramatsu is a testimony to the capacity of ordinary people from vastly different backgrounds to co exist harmoniously even in the aftermath of war

Those Days in Muramatsu Yumi Goto, 2014 Bearing witness to the encounters of American soldiers and Japanese civilians in the aftermath of a savage war the memoir of Mrs Yumi Goto is a poignant testimony to the capacity of ordinary people for mutual curiosity learning and generosity In the summer of 1945 a contingent of 1 800 American soldiers was posted as a garrison force in the country town of Muramatsu where they lived alongside a community feeling depressed and fearful at the prospect of foreign occupation Mrs Goto an English speaking graduate of one of Japan's top universities for women had relocated to Muramatsu with her family after their house in Tokyo was destroyed in a bombing raid She became an interpreter while the Americans were in Muramatsu and recorded light hearted but perceptive observations of the Japanese American encounter Written in English for an American audience who would like to read how their young men behaved in Japan and revealing the thoughts and sentiments of a 26 year old girl in war devastated Japan her memoir is a charming and uplifting account of a woman's journey and how ordinary people from very different backgrounds found common ground in difficult circumstances

Association Men, 1891 After the Flash Linda Rosenbery, 2020-07-27 This historical narrative reveals the life of Linda a young woman struggling to come to grips with her rudderless existence of her stumbling back to her hometown after a failed marriage and having to face the judgments of a stoic Japanese mother Chieko's life is in stark contrast having survived the most horrific last days of World War II and having come of age in occupied Japan where she made a living working in a hostess club serving drinks and dancing with servicemen Linda wants to write her mother's story and Chieko always says no But then something happens between Chieko and Linda as they begin to bond through Linda's apprenticeship in Chieko's flower garden On those gardening days after the work is done they sit at the kitchen table where Chieko quite openly weaves for her daughter the threads of her life including her determination to survive Linda at times feels traumatized by her mother Chieko's descriptions of the war and most of the time Linda ends her kitchen table talks and heads to the local bar to get drunk One spring day in the fourth year of their kitchen table talks Chieko says to Linda as they sip scotch If you really must tell my story tell it like the playwright Eugene O'Neill because he knew sadness Even though Linda hears it in her mother's voice each time she speaks about her life the sorrow in her tone routinely breaks Linda down But Chieko is funny too with stories of coming of age at a time in Japan when most believed romance and life in paradise was a promise made in American films brought in by the occupation Chieko's hopes and dreams of life in the States with a handsome hero are penned on a photograph of herself that she gives to her American lover as he heads back to the States It is a simple note that reads I promise my eternal love Of all the lovely traits mothers and daughters can have in common one of theirs isn't so lovely They both don't keep promises

Hiroshima in the Morning Rahna Reiko Rizzuto, 2010-09-14 The award winning author of Shadow Child embarks on a simple journey to record history that changes her life as a wife and mother In June 2001 Rahna Reiko Rizzuto went to Hiroshima Japan in search of a deeper understanding of her war torn heritage She planned to spend six months there interviewing the few remaining survivors of the atomic bomb A mother of two young boys she was encouraged to go by her husband who quickly became disenchanted by her absence It is her first solo life adventure immediately exhilarating for her but her research starts off badly Interviews with the hibakusha feel rehearsed and the survivors reveal little beyond published accounts Then the attacks on September 11 change everything The survivors carefully constructed memories are shattered causing them to relive their agonizing experiences and to open up to Rizzuto in astonishing ways Separated from family and country while the world seems to fall apart Rizzuto's marriage begins to crumble as she wrestles with her ambivalence about being a wife and mother Woven into the story of her own awakening are the stories of Hiroshima in the survivors' own words The parallel narratives explore the role of memory in our lives and show how memory is not history but a story we tell ourselves to explain who we are 2010 FINALIST FOR THE NATIONAL BOOK CRITICS CIRCLE AWARD A brave compassionate and heart wrenching memoir of one woman's quest to redeem the past while learning to live fully in the present Kate Moses author of Wintering This searing and redemptive memoir is an explosive account of motherhood reconstructed Ayelet Waldman author of Red Hook Road
