

In the valve, the oil returns directly and freely to the pump through the outlet (10) without passing through the valve.

The valve flow can be adjusted, from 0 to 60% of the maximum flow of the system.

The regulator (11) controls the flow.

NOTE: The valve has commutators (8), which allow it to select between single action and dual action.

Fig. 6

Number of lines

Varying from one to three + four in exceptional cases.

Combined flow

Application: Standard 4- and 6-cylinder tractors.

This feature consists of bypassing the hydraulic oil flow to the remote control, the same way as the dependent remote control.

The difference is that the bypassed flow is added to the remote control, i.e. it is not the only part responsible for the drive.

To activate this system, pull the selector lever (13) as per the arrow. Then place the function lever (12) into 'Constant Pumping' mode all the way back.

The combined flow increases the flow available on the remote control to:

- 13 Lpm in tractors with 540-gpm PTO.
- 27 Lpm tractors with 1050-gpm-PTO.

The reason for this variation of flow rate is that in tractors with 540-gpm PTO, the 9th pump (9) (9) rotates at a speed less than that of tractors with 1050/1000-gpm PTO.

The gear ratio (14) at the input of the gearbox determines the speed.

Fig. 9

PTO/PTD output shaft (16).

Independent power takeoff

The independent power takeoff switch is actuated in the following mode:

PTO activated to return from lowering.

The pressure control is exerted by the "MAX" maintaining valve (15), set at 12 bar to 24 bar.

Through the outlet (18), the oil is also directed to the control coast on the right-hand side of the central housing, as in other cases.

The resulting flow is split to the control coast, on the left-hand side of the central housing, which controls the maintain valve and coast.

Fig. 10

When one or more of these levers are present on the tractor, they are actuated by a second hydraulic pump (17).

The second gear pump is assembled in tandem with the first.

The larger front pump (20) actuates the steering system and in return, the remote control.
