by Thomas Paine including 31 articles posits that popular political revolution is permissible when a government does not safeguard the natural rights of its people Using these points as a base it defends the French Revolution against Edmund Burke s attack in Reflections on the Revolution in France 1790 It was published in two parts in March 1791 and February 1792 From the part Mr Burke took in the American Revolution it was natural that I should consider him a friend to mankind and as our acquaintance commenced on that ground it would have been more agreeable to me to have had cause to continue in that opinion than to change it At the time Mr Burke made his violent speech last winter in the English Parliament against the French Revolution and the National Assembly I was in Paris and had written to him but a short time before to inform him how prosperously matters were going on Soon after this I saw his advertisement of the Pamphlet he intended to publish As the attack was to be made in a language but little studied and less understood in France and as everything suffers by translation I promised some of the friends of the Revolution in that country that whenever Mr Burke s Pamphlet came forth I would answer it This appeared to me the more necessary to be done when I saw the flagrant misrepresentations which Mr Burke s Pamphlet contains and that while it is an outrageous abuse on the French Revolution and the principles of Liberty it is an imposition on the rest of the world
