World Textile Industry John Singleton, 2013-05-13 This book analyzes the competitive forces which dominate this major sector and traces how the nature of competition has evolved during the last two hundred years Through an analysis of key factors including demand related and supporting industries firm strategy structure and national rivalry chance and government policy the author explains how and why the locus of competitive advantage in textiles and apparel has moved from country to country particularly in the period since 1945 World Textile Industry, 2016 Provocative Plastics Susan Lambert, 2021-01-07 Plastics have now been our most used materials for over fifty years This book adopts a new approach exploring plastics contribution from two perspectives as a medium for making and their value in societal use The first approach examines the multivalent nature of plastics materiality and their impact on creativity through the work of artists designers and manufacturers The second perspective explores attitudes to plastics and the different value systems applied to them through current research undertaken by design materials and socio cultural historians The book addresses the environmental impact of plastics and elucidates the ways in which they can and must be part of the solution The individual viewpoints are provocative and controversial but together they present a balanced and scholarly unpicking of the debate that surrounds this ubiquitous group of materials The book is essential reading for a wide academic readership interested in the Arts and Humanities especially Design and Design History Anthropology and Cultural Material and Social Histories

The World Textile Industry John Singleton, 1997 This book traces how the nature of competition in this sector has evolved during the last two hundred years and how and why the locus of competitive advantage in textiles and apparel has moved from country to country since 1945 British Cotton Textiles: Maturity and Decline David Higgins, Steven Toms, 2018-11-09 This book examines the decline of the cotton textiles industry which defined Britain as an industrial nation from its peak in the late nineteenth century to the state of the industry at the end of the twentieth century Focusing on the owners and managers of cotton businesses the authors examine how they mobilised financial resources their attitudes to industry structure and technology and their responses to the challenges posed by global markets The origins of the problems which forced the industry into decline are not found in any apparent loss of competitiveness during the long nineteenth century but rather in the disastrous reflation after the First World War As a consequence of these speculations rationalisation and restructuring became more difficult at the time when they were most needed and government intervention led to a series of partial solutions to what became a process of protracted decline In the post 1945 period the authors show how government policy encouraged capital withdrawal rather than encouraging the investment needed for restructuring The examples of corporate success since the Second World War such as David Alliance and his Viyella Group exploited government policy access to capital markets and closer relationships with retailers but were ultimately unable to respond effectively to international competition and the challenges of globalisation The chapters in this book were originally
