Reinberger, Elizabeth McLean, 2015-10-21 Cedar Grove The Cliffs Grumblethorpe Mount Airy Bartram's House and Garden Accommodation of the Vernacular Comfortable Everyday Life at the Swedish Eighteenth-Century Näs Manor Carolina Brown, 2025-10-01 During the eighteenth century comfortable everyday life becomes a new ideal The good life was no longer about grand representation or the manifestation of material opulence The new luxury was instead the comfortably arranged life at home This book is about the traces of this change its approach and consequences and its anchoring in the material and social life of the Swedish manor The comfort revolution of the eighteenth century was clearly associated with both new types of furniture and new ways of furnishing An important aspect of the development of comfort was the new mobility and flexibility in form and function that the home and its interior now showed Through the home of the Wadenstierna family on the country estate of Näs north of Stockholm the comfortable everyday life is set by their various tables at writing desks sewing tables dressing tables coffee tables and games tables The Comforts of Home in Western Europe, 1700-1900 Jon Stobart, 2020-02-20 Comfort both physical and affective is a key aspect in our conceptualization of the home as a place of emotional attachment yet its study remains under developed in the context of the European house In this volume Jon Stobart has assembled an international cast of contributors to discuss the ways in which architectural and spatial innovations coupled with the emotional assemblage of objects to create comfortable homes in early modern Europe The book features a two section structure focusing on the historiography of architectural and spatial innovations and material culture in the early modern home It also includes 10 case studies which draw on specific examples from water closets in Georgian Dublin to wallpapers in 19th century Cambridge to illustrate how people made use of and responded to the technological improvements and the emotional assemblage of objects which made the home comfortable In addition it explores the role of memory and memorialisation in the domestic space and the extent to which home comforts could be carried about by travellers or reproduced in places far removed from the home

The Comforts of Home in Western Europe 1700 1900 offers a fresh contribution to the study of comfort in the early modern home and will be vital reading for academics and students interested in early modern history material culture and the history of interior architecture

Comfort in the Eighteenth-Century Country House Jon Stobart,2021-09-21 Country houses were grand statements of power and status but they were also places where people lived This book traces the changes in layout the new technologies and the innovations in furniture that made them more convenient and comfortable It argues that these material changes were just one aspect of comfort in the country house feeling comfortable was just as important as being comfortable Achieving this involved the comfort and solace to be found in daily routines religious faith and above all relationships with family and friends Such emotional comforts and the attachment to things and places that embodied and memorialized them made country houses into homes considerable material support in the form of research facilities such as anatomical theaters botanical gardens and expensive instruments 5 the universities provided professional employment and a means of support to many scientists and 6 although the relations among the universities and the academies or scientific societies were sometimes antagonistic the two types of institutions often worked together in harmony performing complementary rather than competing functions moreover individuals moved from one institution to another as did knowledge methods and scientific practices
