Demographic and Socio-Economic Variables for Cross-National Comparative Survey Research Jürgen H.P.

Hoffmeyer-Zlotnik,Uwe Warner,2013-10-07 This book explains harmonisation techniques that can be used in survey research to align national systems of categories and definitions in such a way that comparison is possible across countries and cultures It provides an introduction to instruments for collecting internationally comparable data of interest to survey researchers It shows how seven key demographic and socio economic variables can be harmonised and employed in European comparative surveys The seven key variables discussed in detail are education occupation income activity status private household ethnicity and family These demographic and socio economic variables are background variables that no survey can do without They frequently have the greatest explanatory capacity to analyse social structures and are a mirror image of the way societies are organised nationally This becomes readily apparent when one attempts for example to compare national education systems Moreover a comparison of the national definitions of concepts such as private household reveals several different historically and culturally shaped underlying concepts Indeed some European countries do not even have a word for private household Hence such national definitions and categories cannot simply be translated from one culture to another They must be harmonised Focus on Evidence III Heiner Böttger,Michaela Sambanis,2020-06-22 Mit diesem dritten tern für die vier Interventionsgruppen sowie deren weitere Analyse anhand von digitalen Feldnotizen der Trainer:innen. Diese digitalen Feldnotizen werden systematisch durch das Verfahren der qualitativen zusammenfassenden Inhaltsanalyse nach Mayring 2022 ausgewertet. Die qualitativen Ergebnisse zeigen, dass in allen vier Interventionsgruppen die Schüler:innen alle sechs Phasen der Unterrichtsreihe nach dem SRSD-Ansatz durchlaufen. Die Schaffung einer motivierenden Schreibumgebung durch die Umsetzung von für den SRSD-Ansatz charakteristischen Designprinzipien der Unterrichtsreihe können dabei als potenziell ergiebige Faktoren für die Förderung der Schreibkompetenz aller Schüler:innen identifiziert werden. Die quantitativen Ergebnisse zeigen, dass diejenigen Schüler:innen die höchste Textqualität und Textlänge aufweisen, welche zuvor die Unterrichtsreihe zum dialektischen Erörtern absolvierten (t2 und t3). Des Weiteren werden in der vorliegenden Dissertationsarbeit Aspekte hinsichtlich eines Transfers der untersuchten Unterrichtsreihe in die Schreibforschung, die Schulpraxis sowie die Lehrkräfteaus- und Weiterbildung erl utert.

EN Writing a pro and con argumentation is a relevant writing task and is a compulsory part of the examinations for the intermediate school leaving certificate MSA examinations in year 10 in the subject German in Berlin and Brandenburg. However, for German non grammar schools there are neither scientific studies to assess writing skills in the area of pro and con argumentation nor tried and tested teaching concepts for teaching this type of text. The self-regulated strategy development approach (SRSD) approach is one way of promoting the writing skills of all pupils with the help of the scaffolding concept. For the first adaptation of the SRSD approach for the text type of pro and con argumentation at non grammar schools, this study therefore pursues the following global question: How do the series of lessons on pro and con argumentations according to the Self-Regulated Strategy Development approach and the associated scaffolds as part of a research and teaching project effect the writing skills of 9th grade learning groups at two comprehensive schools in Brandenburg based on the text length and holistic text quality of pro and con argumentations? The aforementioned series of lessons on pro and con argumentation was conducted within six lessons (90 minutes each) using the design-based research approach as part of the Fair Debating and Written Argumentation project. From the corpus of that project, the pro and con argumentation texts of a total of seven 9th grade classes at two comprehensive schools in Brandenburg (N=381) were extracted, including student texts from four randomised intervention groups with two different treatment sequences (DE: first debating then writing, n=115; and ED: first writing then debating, n=118) as well as from three control groups (n=148). The texts were collected longitudinally at four measurement points using four original writing tasks from MSA examinations from 2013 and 2017 and analysed as follows using a mixed method design:

a) On a quantitative level, holistic text quality (double-blind rating on a 5-point scale) and text length are considered as indicators of writing competence of pro and con argumentations at all four measurement points, and mean differences at one measurement point are calculated using single factor analyses of variance.

b) On a qualitative level, the series of lessons on pro and con argumentations is described for the four intervention groups and further analysed using the trainers' digital field notes. These digital field notes are systematically analysed using the qualitative summarising content analysis method according to Mayring 2022 The qualitative results show that in all four intervention groups the students go through all six phases of the series of lessons according to the SRSD approach The creation of a motivating writing environment through the implementation of design principles characteristic of the SRSD approach in the series of lessons can be identified as potentially productive factors for promoting the writing skills of all students The quantitative results show that those students who had previously completed the pro and con argumentation series of lessons t2 and t3 had the highest text quality and text length Furthermore this dissertation discusses aspects regarding the transfer of the investigated series of lessons into writing research school practice and teacher training and further education
