The Electric Vehicle Gijs Mom, 2013-02-15 Winner of the Engineer Historian Award from the International History and Heritage Committee of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Nicholas Joseph Cugnot Award given by the Society of Automotive Historians Recent attention to hybrid cars that run on both gasoline and electric batteries has made the electric car an apparent alternative to the internal combustion engine and its attendant environmental costs and geopolitical implications Few people realize that the electric car neither a recent invention nor a historical curiosity has a story as old as that of the gasoline powered automobile and that at one time many in the nascent automobile industry believed battery powered engines would become the dominant technology In both Europe and America electric cars and trucks succeeded in meeting the needs of a wide range of consumers Before World War II as many as 30 000 electric cars and more than 10 000 electric trucks plied American roads European cities were busy with electrically propelled fire engines taxis delivery vans buses heavy trucks and private cars Even so throughout the century long history of electric propulsion the widespread conviction it was an inferior technology remained stubbornly in place an assumption mirrored in popular and scholarly memory In The Electric Vehicle Gijs Mom challenges this view arguing that at the beginning of the automobile age neither the internal combustion engine nor the battery powered vehicle enjoyed a clear advantage He explores the technology and marketing consumer ratio faction relationship over four generations of electric vehicle design with separate chapters on privately owned passenger cars and commercial vehicles Mom makes comparisons among European countries and between Europe and America He finds that the electric vehicle offered many advantages among them greater reliability and control less noise and pollution He also argues that a nexus of factors cultural underpowered and less rugged electric cars seemed feminine at a time when most car buyers were men structural the shortcomings of battery technology at the time and systemic the infrastructural problems of changing large numbers of batteries ultimately gave an edge to the internal combustion engine One hopes as a new generation of electric vehicles becomes a reality The Electric Vehicle offers a long overdue reassessment of the place of this technology in the history of street transportation

The Archaeology of the Roman Economy Kevin Greene,1986 Kevin Greene shows how archaeology can help provide a more balanced view of the Roman economy by informing the classical historian about geographical areas and classes of society that received little attention from the largely aristocratic classical writers whose work survives

Insuring the Industrial Revolution Robin Pearson,2017-07-05 Fire had always been one of the greatest threats to an early modern British society that relied on the naked flame as the prime source of heating lighting and cooking Yet whilst the danger of fire had always been taken seriously it was not until the start of the eighteenth century that a sophisticated system of insurance became widely available Whilst a number of high profile fires during the seventeenth century had drawn attention to the economic havoc a major conflagration could wreak it was not until the effects of sustained industrialization began to alter the economic and social balance of the nation that fire insurance really took off as a concept The culmination of ten years of research this book is the definitive work on early British fire insurance It also provides a foundation for future comparative international studies of this important financial service and for a greater level of theorising by historians about the relationship between insurance perceptions of risk economic development and social change Through a detailed study of the archives of nearly 50 English and Scottish insurance companies founded between 1696 and 1850 virtually all the records currently available together with the construction of many new datasets on output performance and markets this book presents one of the most comprehensive histories ever written of a financial service As well as measuring the size market structure and growth rate of insurance and the extent to which the first industrial revolution was insured it also demonstrates ways in which insurance can be linked into wider issues of economic and social change in Britain These range from an examination of the joint stock company form of organization to an analysis of changing attitudes towards fire hazard during the course of the eighteenth century The book concludes by emphasising the ambivalent character of fire insurance in eighteenth and early nineteenth century Britain contrasting the industry s dynamic long run rate of growth with its more conservative attitude to product design and diversification

The Age of Improvement, 1783-1867 Asa Briggs,2014-06-17 The Age of Improvement has long established itself as a classic of modern historical writing Widely read and quoted it has had a unique influence on teaching and research This second edition draws on the great volume of new research produced by Lord Briggs amongst others since its original publication The book stresses both the underlying unity and the rich variety of the age and raises fundamental issues about a period of crucial change in British history industrialisation war constitutional change and the attitudes of politicians towards it political development and not least society and culture In the background are the new economic powers based on the development of a coal and iron technology in the foreground new social and political problems and new ways of tackling them The author also discusses perceptions of and reactions to changing circumstances the influence of religion and science on national life and changing styles in art and literature The story ends not with a full stop but with a question mark Could improvement be maintained Could balance and progress continue to be reconciled
