years of desire and determination I have visited Africa the land of my forefathers So wrote Lida Clanton Broner 1895 1982 an African American housekeeper and hairstylist from Newark New Jersey upon her return from an extraordinary nine month journey to South Africa in 1938 This epic trip was motivated not only by Broner s sense of ancestral heritage but also a grassroots resolve to connect the socio political concerns of African Americans with those of black South Africans under the segregationist policies of the time During her travels this woman of modest means circulated among South Africa s Black intellectual elite including many leaders of South Africa s freedom struggle Her lectures at Black schools on race consciousness and race pride had a decidedly political bent even as she was presented as an American beauty specialist How did Broner a working class mother come to be a globally connected activist What were her experiences as an African American woman in segregated South Africa and how did she further her work after her return Broner s remarkable story is the subject of this book which draws upon a deep visual and documentary record now held in the collection of the Newark Museum of Art This extraordinary archive includes more than one hundred and fifty objects ranging from beadwork and pottery to mission school crafts acquired by Broner in South Africa along with her diary correspondence scrapbooks and hundreds of photographs with handwritten notations

Catalogue of Printed

Books and Papers Relating to South Africa Peter MacOwan, 1882 Catalogue of an Extensive Collection of Books, Pamphlets, Views, Maps, and Transactions of Societies Relating to Africa and African Islands, Offered at the Prices Affixed by Francis Edwards, Bookseller Francis Edwards (Firm), 1902 Africa's Buildings Itohan I. Osayimwese, 2025-09-23

A groundbreaking history of Africa's looted architectural heritage and a bold proposal for the repatriation of the continent's stolen cultural artifacts. Between the nineteenth century and today, colonial officials, collectors, and anthropologists dismembered African buildings and dispersed their parts to museums in Europe and the United States. Most of these artifacts were cataloged as ornamental art objects, which erased their intended functions, and the removal of these objects often had catastrophic consequences for the original structures. Africa's Buildings traces the history of the collection and distribution of African architectural fragments, documenting the brutality of the colonial regimes that looted Africa's buildings and addressing the ethical questions surrounding the display of these objects. Itohan Osayimwese ranges across the whole of Africa, from Egypt in the north to Zimbabwe in the south, and spanning the western, central, and eastern regions of the continent. She describes how collectors employed violent means to remove elements such as columns and door panels from buildings and how these methods differentiated architectural collecting from conventional collecting. She shows how Western collectors mischaracterized building components as ornament, erasing their architectural character and concealing the evidence of their theft. Osayimwese discusses how the very act of displacing building parts like floor tiles and woven screen walls has resulted in a loss of knowledge about their original function and argues that because of these removals, scholars have yet to fully grasp the variety and character of African architecture. Richly illustrated, Africa's Buildings uncovers the vast scale of cultural displacement perpetrated by the West and proposes a new role for museums in this history, one in which they champion the repatriation of Africa's architectural heritage and restitution for African communities.
