Travelling Passions Stefansson The Arctic Explorer:

Travelling Passions Gísli Pálsson, 2005 Vilhjalmur Stefansson is widely known for his groundbreaking Canadian Arctic explorations of the early 1900s. He acquired a reputation almost larger than life with his discovery of the Copper Inuit, a hitherto unknown people; his insistence on living as the local people did; and with Natkusiak, his Inuit co-explorer, his adventurous forays onto barren ice for months at a time. He was a fixture in the New York Greenwich Village scene and later in his life taught at Dartmouth College. However, despite his detailed field diaries and the frenzy of publicity that followed his every move, his private life has remained largely unknown. Then in 1987, an accidental discovery in a flea market of hundreds of private letters and documents proved to be those belonging to Stefansson, and they told a story of private relationships, in particular with two southern women: Orpha Cecil Smith, to whom Stefansson was engaged, and the novelist Fannie Hurst, with whom Stefansson was involved for many years. Moreover, letters between some of Stefansson's friends, as well as his own field diaries, alluded to an important relationship Stefansson had with an Inupiat woman in the Arctic, Pannigabluk, and to their son Alex. Gísli Pálsson has followed the trail of these sources and conducted many interviews with Stefansson's northern descendants, uncovering a complex and perhaps torn personality. In Travelling Passions, we have a much more complete picture of the man who figured so largely in the imagination of the early twentieth century. BOOK JACKET

Travelling Passions Gísli Pálsson, 2005-09-07 Vilhjalmur Stefansson has long been known for his groundbreaking work as an anthropologist and expert on Arctic peoples. His three expeditions to the Canadian Arctic in the early 1900s, as well as his expertise in northern anthropology, helped create his public image as a heroic Hemingwayesque figure in the annals of twentieth-century exploration. But the emotional and private life of Stefansson, the man, have remained hidden until now. New evidence of this other life has recently been discovered: a collection of love letters between Stefansson and his fiancée Orpha Cecil Smith were found in a New Hampshire flea market. Stefansson's field diaries have revealed elegant essays and insightful commentary on Inupiat society; baptismal records have revealed that Stefansson had a son, Alex, with his informant and guide Fanny Pannigabluk; and through web searches, a private detective, Pálsson, has found and conducted interviews with the descendants of both Cecil Smith and Alex. Travelling Passions sheds new light on Stefansson's life and work, focusing on the tension between his private life and the theories that brought his name to the halls of fame. Pálsson draws a clear, vivid, and in many ways unexpected picture of the mythical figure of Stefansson. Gender and Climate Change Joane Nagel, 2025-08-05 Does gender matter in global climate change? This timely and provocative book takes readers on a guided tour of basic climate science, then holds up a gender lens to find out what has been overlooked in popular discussion, research, and policy debates. We see that around the world, more women than men die in climate-related natural disasters; the history of science and war are intimately interwoven; masculine occupations and preoccupations, and conservative men and their interests, drive the climate change denial machine. We also see that climate policymakers who embrace big science approaches and solutions to climate change are predominantly male with an ideology of perpetual economic growth and an agenda that marginalizes the interests of women and developing economies The book uses vivid case studies to highlight the often surprising gendered impacts of climate changes This new edition is a thorough update that includes revised and new chapters and new material that takes account of the significant advances in climate research environmental and social theory and the many political and social challenges posed in the wake of US elections Covid 19 pandemic and rapidly changing climate and environment The new edition also takes account of important social and cultural movements that resist challenges to women s rights and advocate for gender sexuality and racial justice This book will appeal to students researchers and academicians interested in environmental studies and gender studies It also will be of interest to policymakers activists and others involved with environmental policy and governance

The Polar Regions Adrian Howkins,2015-11-20 The environmental histories of the Arctic and Antarctica are characterised by contrast and contradiction These are places that have witnessed some of the worst environmental degradation in recent history But they are also the locations of some of the most farsighted measures of environmental protection They are places where people have sought to conquer nature through exploration and economic development but in many ways they remain wild and untamed They are the coldest places on Earth yet have come to occupy an important role in the science and politics of global warming Despite being located at opposite ends of the planet and being significantly different in many ways Adrian Howkins argues that the environmental histories of the Arctic and Antarctica share much in common and have often been closely connected This book also argues that the Polar Regions are strongly linked to the rest of the world both through physical processes and through intellectual and political themes As places of inherent contradiction the Polar Regions have much to contribute to the way we think about environmental history and the environment more generally

A Cold Colonialism Tina Adcock,2025-06-01 Exploration has long been pivotal to southern engagements with northern Canada but it is most often associated with the nineteenth century or earlier A Cold Colonialism offers the first extended examination of twentieth century exploration in the Canadian North Modern exploration helped southerners establish and maintain distinctive kinds of colonial and settler colonial power over northern Indigenous homelands Who explored the North between 1918 and 1965 What forms did exploration take What did it mean to explorers and others affected by it Tina Adcock focuses on four representative explorers with richly documented careers mining engineer George Douglas surveyor Guy Blanchet ethnologist Vilhjalmur Stefansson and filmmaker Richard Finnie Despite limited experience in and knowledge of the Canadian North these explorers helped southern militaries industries and governments exert control over northern peoples and their lands Each also claimed belonging in and authority over the North in ways that still resonate among southern settlers in Canada today

Emotion, Place and Culture Mick Smith,Liz Bondi,2016-05-06 Recent years have witnessed a rapid rise in engagement with emotion and affect across a broad range of disciplines in the humanities and social sciences with geographers among others making a significant contribution by examining the emotional intersections between people and places Building on the achievements of Emotional Geographies 2005 the editors have brought together leading scholars such as Nigel Thrift Alphonso Lingis and Frances Dyson as well as young up and coming academics from a diverse range of disciplines to investigate feelings and affect in various spatial and
