From GIVING to IMPACT: Venture Philanthropy. James A. Levine, 2025-09-23 Venture philanthropy is giving that works It's bold structured and built to solve real problems not just fund them Venture philanthropy VP offers a different path It combines the heart of philanthropy with the tools of business It's not about making money but it is about making change Whether you're a foundation leader a donor a social entrepreneur or someone who just wants to do good differently this guide is for you In traditional philanthropy you give a grant The money is usually unrestricted The organization thanks you runs its program and maybe sends you an annual report It's well intentioned but sometimes it's hard to know if your donation really made a difference In venture capital you invest in a startup You check their business plan negotiate terms expect results and if things go well you get a return The process is rigorous data driven and aimed at success Venture philanthropy takes the best of both You fund organizations or projects that are tackling big social problems but instead of walking away you stay engaged You measure progress You fund in stages You offer advice tools and support And if there's a financial return like a loan repaid or an equity stake you reinvest it in your next impact project ABOUT THE AUTHOR Professor James A. Altruism to Investment Joshua D. Merchant, 2014 Competition for philanthropic dollars has escalated in recent years particularly in higher education A new type of charitable giving venture philanthropy has emerged and is impacting both educational policy and practice Venture philanthropy involves donors using business models championed practices of venture capitalists and decision making procedures to drive their philanthropy and ongoing engagement with organizations they support Venture philanthropy has the potential to improve the financial vitality of colleges and universities However it also poses significant questions to the academy as more colleges and universities engage with donors who embrace its tenets The primary research question seeks to understand in what ways venture philanthropy has impacted shared governance of private liberal arts colleges Secondary research questions explore who the decision makers involved in the cultivation solicitation acceptance and implementation of the gift were the benchmarks goals and results that were agreed to before the gift was received the motivation and process of accepting the gift and the lessons learned Administrators and faculty leaders at two liberal arts colleges were interviewed to determine how such gifts functioned within a collegial shared governance model The study indicated that the collegial model of shared governance needs to evolve to reflect the changes of philanthropy in higher education Faculty members want to be more engaged both in setting priorities and in the fundraising process Administrators need to promote increased transparency trust and engagement with faculty in the philanthropic process A new gift process needs to be formalized to manage venture philanthropy gifts Finally the collegial model in practice does not match theory Venture philanthropy donors have an incredible opportunity to financially impact colleges and universities nationwide but traditional theories of shared governance have not kept pace with the changes of external influence on higher education Recommendations for practices include promoting a shared vision more widely increasing transparency and consensus building improving faculty engagement in philanthropy strengthening leadership in negotiating gifts creating strategies for embracing venture philanthropy and improving the process of venture philanthropy gift acceptance Strategies for Foundations Ashley Metz Cummings, Lisa Hehenberger, 2010-01-01
