Towns and Commerce in Viking-Age Scandinavia Sven Kalmring, 2024-01-25 The Viking Age from c 750 to 1050 CE was an era of major social change in Scandinavia By the end of this period of sweeping transformation Scandinavia once a pagan periphery had been firmly integrated into occidental Europe Archaeological remains offer evidence of this process which included and intertwined with Christianisation state formation and the dawn of urbanisation in Scandinavia In this volume Sven Kalmring offers an interdisciplinary and geographically wide ranging approach to understanding the emergence of towns and commerce in Viking age Scandinavia and their eventual demise by the end of the period Using the towns of Hedeby Birka Kaupang and Ribe as case studies he also tracks the diverging characteristics of these urban communities against the background of traditional social structures in the Viking world Instead of tracing the results of Viking Age urbanisation or mapping that process by establishing economic networks Kalmring focusses on the very reasons behind the emergence of towns and their eventual decline
