Rosenberger,Henry McHenry,2013-06-29 The study of primate locomotion is a unique discipline that by its nature is interdisciplinary drawing on and integrating research from ethology ecology comparative anatomy physiology biomechanics paleontology etc When combined and focused on particular problems this diversity of approaches permits unparalleled insight into critical aspects of our evolutionary past and into a major component of the behavioral repertoire of all animals Unfortunately because of the structure of academia integration of these different approaches is a rare phenomenon For instance papers on primate behavior tend to be published in separate specialist journals and read by subgroups of anthropologists and zoologists thus precluding critical syntheses In the spring of 1995 we overcame this compartmentalization by organizing a conference that brought together experts with many different perspectives on primate locomotion to address the current state of the field and to consider where we go from here The conference Primate Locomotion 1995 took place thirty years after the pioneering conference on the same topic that was convened by the late Warren G Kinzey at Davis in 1965 Applying Innovative Technologies in Heritage Science Pavlidis, George,2020-01-03 Heritage science a cross disciplinary field of study that emphasizes research on cultural interpretation and management has seen significant development in recent years Modern technology has opened new innovations and possibilities for scientific cooperation that produces several benefits that affect multiple aspects of this scientific field Applying Innovative Technologies in Heritage Science is a collection of progressive studies on the methods and applications of the technological implications and scientific advancements within heritage and cultural research to bridge the once unbridgeable gap between science and humanities While highlighting topics including digital archives cultural data and chemical documentation this book is ideally designed for archaeologists museologists conservationists preservationists librarians researchers educators cultural heritage professionals academicians and students Interactive Learning David G.
