Gender and Violence in the Middle East David Ghanim Ph.D., 2009-03-20 Gender and Violence in the Middle East argues that violence is fundamental to the functioning of the patriarchal gender structure that governs daily life in Middle Eastern societies Ghanim contends that the inherent violence of gender relations in the Middle East feeds the authoritarianism and political violence that plague public life in the region In this societal sense men as well as women may be said to be victims of the structural violence inherent in Middle Eastern gender relations The author shows that the varieties of physical violence against women for which the Middle East is notorious honor killings obligatory beatings female genital mutilation are merely eruptions of an ethos of psychological violence and the threat of physical violence that pervades gender relations in the Middle East Ghanim documents and analyzes the complementary roles of both sexes in sustaining the system of violence and oppressive control that regulates gender relations in Middle Eastern societies He reveals that women are not only victims of violence but welcome the opportunity to become perpetrators of violence in the married female life cycle of subordination followed by domination The mother in law plays a crucial role in supporting the structure of patriarchal control by stoking tensions with her daughter in law and provoking her son to commit sanctioned violence on his wife The author applies his deep analysis of gender and violence in the Middle East to illuminate the motivational profiles of male and female political suicidalists from the Middle East and the martyrological adulation that they are accorded in Middle Eastern societies

Hermeneutics and Honor Anan Ameri, 1999

Women s traversal of public space in Islamic ate societies and the ensuing process of negotiating gendered identities are the central concerns of this collection of essays The dichotomy between private and public spheres upheld as axiomatic for most societies has recently been challenged by scholars as an artificial construct For women in particular the demarcation between the two spheres has become blurred by the enormous public consequences of their private behaviour Elaborate cultural codes of honour and traditional masculinist interpretations of scripture have reinforced the public private polarity and restricted Muslim women s access to the public realm as conventionally defined The distinguished contributors to this volume provide insight into how women from different social strata and historical periods in various Islamic ate societies have creatively engaged with these limitations upon their behaviour

Women in Zones of Conflict Tami Amanda

Jacoby, 2005 Tami Amanda Jacoby investigates the constraints and opportunities for women s civic engagements in zones of conflict through a case study of three women s political movements in Israel Women in Green The Jerusalem Link and the lobby for women s right to fight in the Israeli Defence Forces IDF Filling a void in feminist studies of women and war Women in Zones of Conflict challenges the traditional view which suggests a natural connection between women and pacifism based on the feminine qualities of caring cooperation and empathy Feminist studies of nationalism also envision women as either victimized by patriarchy within nationalist movements or as adopting masculine qualities to conform to the culture of their male compatriots Jacoby takes an alternative approach considering how women are situated across the political spectrum She argues that when categories other than gender such as class ethnicity religion and political perspective are considered there is no single perspective on what it means to be a woman in conflict

The volume offers competing models of world order from a global perspective and highlights the lack of consensus and considerable variety of practice and belief around the globe as to the definition of religious freedom and where and whether freedom of religion is regarded as the first freedom in the world. The leading theories of freedom of religion are discussed and provide an understanding of freedom of religion beyond the nation state. The liberal view at the global level is also examined and observations are included regarding the need to rethink secularism in the light of present circumstances and within the global context.
