Manual on Stream Gauging ,2010 The Manual on Stream Gauging WMO No 519 was first released in 1980 Since then however there have been significant advances both in the approach and the methodologies employed Consequently at its twelfth session Geneva October 2004 the WMO Commission for Hydrology CHy decided to meet the identified needs of the National Hydrological Services by revising the Manual to include the newer technologies that have been introduced over the period and are currently employed in this crucial field In this context Volume I of the manual encompasses the topics of gauge height measurement stream velocity and stream discharge whilst Volume II focuses on the discharge rating relationship Publisher s description

Channel-conveyance capacity, channel change, and sediment transport in the lower Puyallup, White, and Carbon Rivers, western Washington Jonathan A. Czuba,Christiana R. Czuba,Christopher S. Magirl,Frank D. Voss,2010-12-01 Draining the volcanic glaciated terrain of Mount Rainier Washington the Puyallup White and Carbon Rivers convey copious volumes of water and sediment down to Commencement Bay in Puget Sound Recent flooding in the lowland river system has renewed interest in understanding sediment transport and its effects on flow conveyance throughout the lower drainage basin Bathymetric and topographic data for 156 cross sections were surveyed in the lower Puyallup River system by the U S Geological Survey USGS and were compared with similar datasets collected in 1984 Regions of significant aggradation were measured along the Puyallup and White Rivers Between 1984 and 2009 aggradation totals as measured by changes in average channel elevation were as much as 7 5 6 5 and 2 feet on the Puyallup White and Carbon Rivers respectively These aggrading river sections correlated with decreasing slopes in riverbeds where the rivers exit relatively confined sections in the upper drainage and enter the relatively unconstricted valleys of the low gradient Puget Lowland. Measured grain size distributions from each riverbed showed a progressive fining downstream. Analysis of stage discharge relations at streamflow gaging stations along rivers draining Mount Rainier demonstrated the dynamic nature of channel morphology on river courses influenced by glaciated volcanic terrain. The greatest rates of aggradation since the 1980s were in the Nisqually River near National 5 0 inches per year and the White River near Auburn 1 8 inches per year. Less pronounced aggradation was measured on the Puyallup River and the White River just downstream of Mud Mountain Dam. The largest measured rate of incision was measured in the Cowlitz River at Packwood 5 0 inches per year. Channel conveyance capacity estimated using a one dimensional hydraulic model decreased in some river reaches since 1984. The reach exhibiting the largest decrease about 20 50 percent in channel conveyance capacity was the White River between R Street Bridge and the Lake Tapps return a reach affected by recent flooding. Conveyance capacity also decreased in sections of the Puyallup River. Conveyance capacity was mostly unchanged along other study reaches. Bedload transport was simulated throughout the entire river network and consistent with other observations and analyses the hydraulic model showed that the upper Puyallup and White Rivers tended to accumulate sediment. Accuracy of the bedload transport modeling however was limited due to a scarcity of sediment transport data sets from the Puyallup system. Mantling of sand over cobbles in the lower Puyallup and White Rivers and overall uncertainty in modeling sediment transport in gravel bedded rivers. Consequently the output results from the model were treated as more qualitative in value useful in comparing geomorphic trends within different river reaches but not accurate in producing precise predictions of mass of sediment moved or deposited. The hydraulic model and the bedload transport component were useful for analyzing proposed river management options if surveyed cross sections adequately represented the river management site and proposed management options. The hydraulic model showed that setback levees would provide greater flood protection than gravel bar scalping after the initial project construction and for some time thereafter although the model was not accurate enough to quantify the length of time of the flood protection. The greatest hydraulic benefit from setback levees would be a substantial increase in the effective channel conveyance area. By widening the distance between levees the new floodplain would accommodate larger increases in discharge with relatively small incremental increases in stage. Model simulation results indicate that the hydraulic benefit from a setback levee also would be long lived and would effectively compensate for increased deposition within the setback reach from increased channel conveyance capacity. In contrast the benefit from gravel bar scalping would be limited by the volume of material that could be removed and the underlying hydraulics in the river section that would be mostly unaffected by scalping. Finally the study formulated an explanation of the flooding that affected Pacific Washington in January 2009. Reduction in channel conveyance capacity of about 25 percent at the White River near Auburn streamflow gaging station between November 2008 and January 2009 was caused by rapid accumulation of coarse grained sediment just downstream of the gage continuing an ongoing trend of aggradation that has been documented repeatedly
