Winemaking From Grape Growing To Marketplace Chapman Hall Enology Library:

Winemaking Richard P. Vine, Ellen M. Harkness, Sally J. Linton, 2012-12-06 Over the past several decades consumer interest in the fine vintage wines produced by small boutique vintners across the United States has grown to rival that of many European estates This attention continues to intensify especially for the truly good wines that are reasonably priced Consumers are however unforgiving especially wine enthusiasts Second class wines do not succeed just because a vintner is new The methods and controls essential to vintners in the production and marketing of top grade wines have advanced This second edition of Winemaking has updated and in some cases completely revised the material associated with these disciplines Fine wine is much like other art forms as it is the infinite variability of factors pertaining to the subject that renders it so complex and able to attract buyer s attention Hundreds of different vine varieties are cultivated around the world and no doubt an even greater number of fruit and berry cultivars And with the addition of such factors as terroir soil and climate attributes changing every vintage season varied vineyard cultivation and harvesting techniques advancing production technology dynamic markets and overall operational philosophy one can easily understand the enormous breadth and depth of variation that exists This diversity generates an unimaginable number of different wine possibilities

Winemaking Richard P. Vine, Bruce Bordelon, Ellen M. Harkness, Theresa Browning, 2013-06-08 During the past several decades considerable interest has developed in the United States for the wines that are produced in small wineries across our nation This interest continues to intensify especially for the truly good wines that are reasonably priced Consumers are unforgiving Second class wines will not be acceptable just because a vintner may be newly established The functions that must take place in the small estate type wine cellar and the controls that can be realistically exercised by winemasters are essential in the creation of superior products Although wine can be a comparatively simple food to produce it is a very vast topic Perhaps much the same as with other art forms it is the infinite variability of factors at the root of the subject that renders it so complex There are hundreds of different vine varieties cultivated around the world and doubtlessly an even greater number of fruit and berry cultivars Combined with such factors as soils climates and mesoclimates which may change with each vintage season cultivation techniques harvesting criteria and overall operational philosophy one can easily understand the enormous breadth and depth of variation which exists This diversity along with more than 5 years of enological development generates a number of different wine possibilities that can only be conceived as something vastly exponential
