Wang, Nazih K. Shammass, Yung-Tse Hung, 2010-03-10 The past 30 years have seen the emergence of a growing desire worldwide that positive actions be taken to restore and protect the environment from the degrading effects of all forms of pollution air water soil and noise Because pollution is a direct or indirect consequence of waste the seemingly idealistic demand for zero discharge can be construed as an unrealistic demand for zero waste However as long as waste continues to exist we can only attempt to abate the subsequent pollution by converting it to a less noxious form Three major questions usually arise when a particular type of pollution has been identified 1 How serious is the pollution 2 Is the technology to abate it available and 3 Do the costs of abatement justify the degree of abatement achieved This book is one of the volumes of the Handbook of Environmental Engineering series The principal intention of this series is to help readers formulate answers to the last two questions above The traditional approach of applying tried and true solutions to specific pollution problems has been a major contributing factor to the success of environmental engineering and has accounted in large measure for the establishment of a methodology of pollution control However the realization of the ever increasing complexity and interrelated nature of current environmental problems renders it imperative that intelligent planning of pollution abatement systems be undertaken

Auditing as Independent Authentication Peter W. Wolnizer,2006 During the 1960s and 1970s a remarkable series of books was produced by academic staff in the field of accounting at the University of Sydney It was a period when academic research was largely analytical rather than empirically based For the most part the interests of academics at Sydney were largely directed at questioning the status quo either in the way accounting or auditing was practiced or in the conventional wisdom expressed in textbooks of the time The Sydney Accounting Classics series reflects the diversity of interests of the Sydney school at that time It also recognises the tremendous impact of the foundation professor of accounting R J Chambers This reprint series ensures that the ideas developed during this period remain available to new generations of scholars and researchers The Sydney Accounting Classics series is an initiative of the Accounting Foundation in association with Sydney University Press Auditing as Independent Authentication From the cover of the 1987 edition This is a penetrating exposition of the role of auditing in controlling quality of the financial information on which any interested person may assess the performance and prospects of firms Fire Engineering ,1990 Dictionary Catalog of the Research Libraries of the New York Public Library, 1911-1971 New York Public Library.
