of slowing This book is both a snapshot of current academic practice and an attempt to sort through some of the problems scholars face within this unfolding web of sources and methods The book is divided into five sections each of which begins with a short introduction by a distinguished Africanist scholar The first section deals with archaeological contributions to historical research The second section examines the methodologies involved in deciphering historically accurate African ethnic identities from the records of the trans Atlantic slave trade The third section mines old documentary sources for new historical perspectives The fourth section deals with the method most often associated with African historians that of drawing historical data from oral tradition The fifth section is devoted to essays that present innovative sources and methods for African historical research Together the essays in this cutting edge volume represent the current state of the art in African historical research Toyin Falola is the Jacob and Frances Sanger Mossiker Chair in the Humanities and University Distinguished Teaching Professor at the University of Texas at Austin Christian Jennings is a Doctoral Candidate in History at the University of Texas at Austin

J. Hackett, 1996 The artistic and religious traditions of Africa constitute a primary expression of the intellectual and cultural vitality of this vast and fascinating continent Art plays a vital role especially when oral traditions dominate in expressing and communicating ideas about the relationships between the human spiritual and natural worlds However despite the ritual and symbolic significance of many artistic works the interactive and interdependent relationship between art and religion in the African context remains understudied and misunderstood This book draws on the methodologies of several disciplines to provide a greater understanding of the philosophical and religious aspects of artistic works and to challenge Western perceptions of what is important Case studies and examples reflect the geographical material and gendered diversity of Africa's visual and performing arts and highlight the changes imposed by Christianity Islam and the newer religious movements in post colonial Africa The Bulletin of the Cleveland Museum of Art Cleveland Museum of Art, 1990 Selected Works from the Collection of the National Museum of African Art National Museum of African Art (U.S.), 1999 The National Museum of African Art began as a private educational institution in 1964 and became part of the Smithsonian Institution in 1979 This volume includes highlights from the museum's holdings of traditional African art from throughout the continent although the majority of works originated in sub-Saharan Africa The 150 objects presented include sculpted masks and figures regalia
