someone you don't know knocking on your door you either choose to let the person in or not. It's both exciting and dangerous to start a new manuscript. This book is an engagement with that stranger called writing. Creative or imaginative writing is a complex process that involves more than intellect alone. Writers make use of everything: their sensibilities, history, culture, knowledge, experience, education, and even their biology. These essays seek out and gather into a discussion what writers have said about their own experiences in writing. Although the writers are from around the world and of very different backgrounds, the commonality of their remarks brings home the realization that writers everywhere are grappling with similar problems with the seemingly simple problems of when, where, why, and what to write, but also larger questions such as the relationship between writer and society or issues of privacy, appropriation, or homelessness. While none of these questions can be definitively answered, they can be fruitfully discussed. Originating as questions posed in creative writing seminars, these essays have grown into companion texts for both writers and readers who want to participate in a conversation about what writers do.

Masturbation in Pop Culture Lauren Rosewarne, 2014-10-15 Through reference to over six hundred scenes from film and television, as well as a diverse and cross-disciplinary academic bibliography, Masturbation in Pop Culture investigates the role that masturbation serves within narratives while simultaneously mirroring our complicated relationship with the practice in real life and sparking discussions about a broad range of hot-button sexual subjects. From sitcoms to horror movies, teen comedies to erotic thrillers, autoeroticism is easily detected on screen. The portrayal, however, is not a simple one. Just as in real life, a paradox exists where most of us masturbate and accept it as normal and natural, there simultaneously exists a silence about it that we do it but we don't talk about it, that we enjoy it but we laugh about it. The screen reflects this conflicted relationship It is there hundreds and hundreds of times but it is routinely whispered about mocked and presented as a punchline and is inevitably portrayed as controversial at the very least Masturbation in Pop Culture investigates the embarrassment and squeamishness sexiness and inappropriateness of masturbation showcasing and analyzing how our complex off screen relationship is mirrored in film and television

Suicide in Modern Literature Josefa Ros Velasco, 2022-01-01 This book analyzes the social and contextual causes of suicide the existential and philosophical reasons for committing suicide and the prevention strategies that modern fictional literature places at our disposal They go through the review of Modern fictional literature in the American and European geographical framework following the rationales that modern literature based on fiction can serve the purpose of understanding better the phenomenon of suicide its most inaccessible impulses and that has the potential to prevent suicide From the turn of the 20th century to the present debates over the meaning of suicide became a privileged site for efforts to discover the reasons why people commit suicide and how to prevent this behavior Since the French sociologist and philosopher mile Durkheim published his study Suicide A Study in Sociology in 1897 a reframing of suicide took place giving rise to a flourishing group of researchers and authors devoting their efforts to understand better the causes of suicide and to the formation of suicide prevention organizations A century later we still keep on trying to reach such an understanding of suicide the nature and nuances of its modern conceptualization to prevent suicidal behaviors The question of what suicide means in and for modernity is not an overcome one Suicide is an act that touches all of our lives and engages with the incomprehensible and unsayable Since the turn of the millennium a fierce debate about the state s role in assisted suicide has been adopted Beyond the discussion as to whether physicians should assist in the suicide of patients with unbearable and hopeless suffering the scope of the suicidal agency is much broader concerning general people wanting to die

Sufis in Western Society Markus Dressler, Ron Geaves, Gritt Klinkhammer, 2009-06-02 In recent years Sufism has undergone something of a revival as a spiritual alternative to other manifestations of Islam This book investigates the development of Sufism in Western societies with a regional focus on North America and Europe Exploring a number of issues relating to the dynamic tensions between religious globalization processes and specific sacred localities this book looks at the formation of Sufi movements that have migrated from their place of origin to become global religious networks Sufi groups are highly differentiated and often inaccessible so the origins and development of Sufism in the West have not been widely studied Employing a comparative approach based on regional fieldwork and case studies this book addresses theoretical issues and gives a comprehensive analysis of distinct communities and the development of regional branches of Sufi orders providing an international perspective on Sufism in the West With contributions from well known international experts on the topic the book addresses Sufi orders in the context of the transnational networks in which they are operating and the constraints of the localities in which they live This book will be of interest to scholars and students of religion Islam and Sufism in particular

Mathematical modeling in energy homeostasis, appetite control and food intake with a special attention to ghrelin Jorge Guerra Pires, 2017-03-18 The elegant interconnected mechanisms by which the gastrointestinal GI tract regulates food intake are a marvel of biology but the redundancy e g several hormones seem to have effects in food intake of both GI by means of hormones and central nervous system CNS by means of satiety satiation signals pathways governing energy homeostasis poses formidable challenges for scientists trying to take a clear glimpse of this machinery e g for designing anti obesity and alike pharmaceuticals In essence notwithstanding the astonishing advancements made over the past few decades in unscrambling many of the molecular pathways involved in energy homeostasis regulation a rather cloudy understanding of how all the pieces fit together to function as an integrated system is what can be found for the most part in the scientific community we discuss that in part II of the work in a single chapter divided in several sections for numerous imperative hormones e g cholecystokinin The current work is divided into three parts part I is regarding fundamentals of physiology and mathematical modeling employed all over the work part II is more generic and concerns several hormones what we have called a web of hormones and part III divided into three chapters is more specific concerning a single hormone i e ghrelin The core of the work is part III and to a certain extent part II bearing mind we provide a literature review based on papers scattered dispersed all over the medical science literature The main objective of this work is proposing a mathematical model for ghrelin dynamics Figure 70 a model centered on the gastrointestinal tract stomach small intestine a two compartment model with daily like dynamics short term dynamics and simultaneously proposing a prototype for a systems biology like model igure 40 a model based on numerous hormones for understanding mathematically food intake bodyweight control Ghrelin is a quite powerful orexigenic hormone discovered in the late 1990s that controls appetite and energy homeostasis alongside leptin and other hormones still to be investigated in depth by the medical sciences literature Accordingly we provide a simple mathematical model consisting of a set of ordinary differential equations detailing ghrelin dynamics combined to gastrointestinal signals due to meals Numerical simulations are able to replicate in silico available data from the literature additionally we were able to fit a reduced version of the basal model to experimental data The model is developed as a module for a bigger potential multi compartmental structure detailing food and energy homeostasis within a sort of a web of hormones see part II and the last chapter of part III The present contribute is to recommend a primary mathematical model for ghrelin dynamics centered in the gastrointestinal tract with potentiality to be applied also for postabsorptive states left mainly as future works We go on with the model by presenting mainly two variations further unfolding is left as future endeavor tastants and stochastic version We test several optimization routines for the parameter estimation procedure hybrid algorithms global local search for parameter estimation based on data published for humans three meals a day For all the routines the best is a hybrid composed of simulating annealing as global search and pattern search as local search In the objective function sum of the squared errors SSE we apply artificial neural networks a two layer feedforward neural network for generating new data from the data already published a strategy adopted to increase the data set In the last part of the chapter about ghrelin modeling part III we propose several prototypes for future works based on the basal models the model used for parameter estimation is a minimal reduced model we also provide discussions and future works for the minimal model and parameter estimation Key words
