that Rod Moss has produced during the last 35 years are unique in their dramatisation of the lives of his trusting Aboriginal family and have been critically acclaimed nationally and internationally In his third memoir we follow the nurturing of the curiosity and openness that has fastened him to the luminous power of Central Australia and its First Peoples From the

the climate most conducive to his wellbeing He returns to the city and is invited to participate in Melbourne s dynamic experimental small school movement A year is spent in the USA studying the teachings of Armenian philosopher George

Troubled Waters Patrick Troy,2008-06-01 Australian cities have traditionally relied for their water on a predict and provide philosophy that gives primacy to big engineering solutions In more recent years privatised water authorities seeking to maximise consumption and profits have reinforced the emphasis on increasing supply Now the cities must cope with the stresses these policies have imposed on the eco systems from which they harvest water into which they discharge wastes and on which they are located Residents are having to pay more for their water while the cities themselves are becoming less sustainable Must we build more dams and desalination plants or should we be managing the demand for urban water more prudently This book explores the demand for urban water and how it has changed in response to shifting social mores over the past century It explains how demand for centralised provision of water might be reshaped to enable the cities to better cope with expected changes in supply as our climate changes And it discusses the implications of property rights in water for
