Victorians In The Mountains Victorians In The Mountains:

Victorians in the Mountains Ann C. Colley, 2010 Ann C Colley examines archival accounts of tourists and female climbers technological advances and theatrical spectacle to trace the evolution of the sublime over the course of the nineteenth century Chapters on John Ruskin Gerard Manley Hopkins and Robert Louis Stevenson whose writings about the Alps reflect their feelings about their Romantic heritage offer insight into their ideas about perception metaphor and literary style

Victorians in the Mountains Ann C. Colley, 2016-02-24 In her compelling book Ann C Colley examines the shift away from the cult of the sublime that characterized the early part of the nineteenth century to the less reverential perspective from which the Victorians regarded mountain landscapes And what a multifaceted perspective it was as unprecedented numbers of the Victorian middle and professional classes took themselves off on mountaineering holidays so commonplace that the editors of Punch sarcastically reported that the route to the summit of Mont Blanc was to be carpeted In Part One Colley mines diaries and letters to interrogate how everyday tourists and climbers both responded to and undercut ideas about the sublime showing how technological advances like the telescope transformed mountains into theatrical spaces where tourists thrilled to the sight of struggling climbers almost inevitably these distant performances were eventually reenacted at exhibitions and on the London stage Colley s examination of the Alpine Club archives periodicals and other primary resources offers a more complicated and inclusive picture of female mountaineering as she documents the strong presence of women on successful expeditions in the latter half of the century In Part Two Colley turns to John Ruskin Gerard Manley Hopkins and Robert Louis Stevenson whose writings about the Alps reflect their feelings about their Romantic heritage and shed light on their ideas about perception metaphor and literary style Colley concludes by offering insights into the ways in which expeditions to the Himalayas affected people s sense of the sublime arguing that these individuals were motivated as much by the glory of Empire as by aesthetic sensibility Her ambitious book is an astute exploration of nationalism as well as theories of gender spectacle and the technicalities of glacial movement that were intruding on what before had seemed inviolable

Topographic Memory and Victorian Travellers in the Dolomite Mountains
William Bainbridge, 2025-10-01 Guided by the romantic compass of Turner Byron and Ruskin Victorian travellers to the Dolomites sketched in the mountainous backdrop of Venice a cultural Petit Tour of global significance As they zigzagged across a debatable land between Italy and Austria Victorians discovered a unique geography characterized by untrodden peaks and unfrequented valleys The discovery of this landscape blended aesthetic scientific and cultural values utterly different from those engendered by the bombastic conquests of the Western Alps achieved during the Golden Age of Mountaineering Filtered through memories of the Venetian Grand Tour the Victorian encounter with the Dolomites is revealed through a series of distinct cultural practices that paradigmatically define a Silver Age of Mountaineering This book shows how these practices are more ethnographic than imperialistic more feminine than masculine more artistic than sportive rather than racing to summits the Silver Age is about rambling rather than conquering peaks it is about sketching them in an intimate interaction with the Dolomite landscape

Victorian Writing about Risk Elaine Freedgood,2000-09-28 In Victorian Writing about Risk first published in 2000 Elaine Freedgood explores the geography of risk produced by a wide spectrum of once popular literature including works on political economy sanitary reform balloon flight Alpine mountaineering and African exploration The consolations offered by this geography of risk are precariously predicated on the stability of dominant Victorian definitions of people and places Women men the labouring and middle classes the English and the Irish Africa and Africans all have assigned identities which allow risk to be located and contained When identities shift and boundaries fail danger and safety begin to appear in all the wrong places The texts that this study focuses on reveal the ways in which risk moralizes and naturalizes the economic and political institutions of industrial imperial culture during a period of unprecedented expansion and change century It traces how British attitudes to mountains were transformed by developments both within the new sport of mountaineering and in the wider fin de siècle culture The emergence of the new genre of mountaineering literature which helped to create a self-conscious community of climbers with broadly shared values coincided with a range of cultural and scientific trends that also influenced the direction of mountaineering The author discusses the growing preoccupation with the physical basis of aesthetic sensations and with physicality and materiality in general the new interest in the physiology of effort and fatigue and the characteristically Victorian drive to enumerate codify and classify Examining a wide range of texts from memoirs and climbing club journals to hotel visitors books he argues that the figure known as the New Mountaineer was seen to embody a distinctly modern approach to mountain climbing and mountain aesthetics The Victorian Review, 1880 Soldiers of the Victorian Age Charles Rathbone Low, 1880 The Oxford Book of Victorian Verse Arthur Quiller-Couch, 1913 Transactions & Proceedings of the Royal Geographical Society of Australasia (Victorian Branch).
