Tributary Landform:

Atlas of Submarine Glacial Landforms J.A. Dowdeswell, M. Canals, M. Jakobsson, B.J. Todd, E.K. Dowdeswell, K. Hogan, 2016-12-16 New geophysical techniques multibeam echo sounding and 3D seismics have revolutionized high resolution imaging of the modern seafloor and palaeo shelf surfaces in Arctic and Antarctic waters generating vast quantities of data and novel insights into sedimentary architecture and past environmental conditions The Atlas of Submarine Glacial Landforms is a comprehensive and timely summary of the current state of knowledge of these high latitude glacier influenced systems The Atlas presents over 180 contributions describing illustrating and discussing the full variability of landforms found on the high latitude glacier influenced seafloor from fjords and continental shelves to the continental slope rise and deep sea basins beyond The distribution and geometry of these submarine landforms provide key information on past ice sheet extent and the direction and nature of ice flow and dynamics The papers discuss individual seafloor landforms landform assemblages and entire landsystems from relatively mild to extreme glacial marine climatic settings and on timescales from the modern margins of tidewater glaciers through Quaternary examples to ancient glaciations in the Late Ordovician Recent

Landforms and Landform Evolution in West Germany Frank Ahnert, 1989 Sustainable Coastal Design and Planning Elizabeth Mossop, 2018-09-27 As different parts of the globe deal with the challenges of coastal settlements in the Anthropocene landscape of increasing uncertainty the methods of design offer new strategies for developing and testing solutions These complex problems require collaboration across disciplines with scientists planners engineers designers and others able to work together in finding new ways of living in coastal and changing landscapes Sustainable Coastal Design and Planning is an outstanding collection of essays by leading practitioners and academics from across the globe on design and planning for coastal resilience in the face of climate change. It thoroughly explores the questions of coastal change at different scales and provides international case studies that illustrate diverse strategies in different geographies and cultures. Taken as a whole, they canvas a broad palette of approaches and techniques for engaging these complex problems. Divided in two parts, this book focuses on how to develop solutions through multidisciplinary design thinking and informs all stakeholders on specific methods and practices that will be needed to work effectively in this dynamic space.

Providing a fresh approach to the theory of design, Landscape: Pattern, Perception and Process synthesizes planning, design, and ecology and shows a new view of where design can develop. The book brings together the work and subject areas of a range of disciplines including psychologists, philosophers, geologists, ecologists, cultural geographers, foresters, urban planners, and landscape architects and synthesizes all these together. Since many landscape and environmental problems require multi-disciplinary approaches for their solution, this book demonstrates how the best integration can be achieved. Highly illustrated, it contains examples from North America, Canada, Europe, and Australasia. Glossary, references, and further reading provide the reader with guidance and back-up resources.
