When Coyote Howls Robert Gish, 1994 A fable on an animal which is disliked by the white man but has a high position in Indian lore By the author of Songs of My Hunter Heart References to Salvador Dalí Make Me Hot and Other Plays José Rivera, 2003 A new collection by the author of Marisol and Other Plays The Laughing Trees Robert Enyeart, 2011-02-11 In 1835 near the headwaters of the Arkansas River Cara Rojo a Ute war chief finds an eight year old white girl who had witnessed her family being swept away in a flash flood the day before The girl has blocked out the horror of the flood and can not speak yet seems to fear nothing The Ute Indians take her to their village and name her Tavimois the Spirit of the Sunrise The girl is Hannah Headly and her brother Daniel has survived the flood but believes his sister was killed with his younger brother and parents Daniel is nursed back to health by Big Butt the Crow wife of negro Mountain man Bull Thompson Needing money to return to the East Daniel hires on as Bull Thompson's helper and heads deeper into the wilderness to trade with the plains tribes to the West and North Bull takes Daniel to meet the Frenchman Phillip Rondel who has a beautiful half Indian daughter he wants to marry off to a white man Daniel is soon smitten by Monique Rondel's beauty After a winter of trading with the Indians Bull Thompson brings Daniel back to the Frenchman's camp and Daniel asks Monique to Marry him Monique will only marry a Sundancer and Daniel agrees to Sundance Bull Thompson gives Daniel opium to dull the pain of the bone needles the Indians thrust through his chest muscles to start the sundance Hanging by leather cords tied to the bone needles in his chest Daniel has a sun dream a vision of his sister running happily through a forest of laughing aspens The Latin American Story Finder Sharon Barcan Elswit, 2015-10-02 Anything is possible in the world of Latin American folklore where Aunt Misery can trap Death in a pear tree Amazonian dolphins lure young girls to their underwater city and the Feathered Snake brings the first musicians to Earth One in a series of folklore reference guides an invaluable resource School Library Journal this book features summaries and sources of 470 tales told in Mexico Central America and South America a region underrepresented in collections of world folklore The volume sends users to the best stories retold in English from the Inca Maya and Aztec civilizations Spanish and Portuguese missionaries and colonists African slave cultures indentured servants from India and more than 75 indigenous tribes from 21 countries The tales are grouped into themed sections with a detailed subject index Prairie Schooner Lowry Charles Wimberly, 1927 Challenging Standards for Student Success, 1997 Coyote Voacal Communication and Its Application to the Selective Management of Problem Individuals Brian Reid Mitchell, 2004 Livestock depredation by coyotes severely affects ranchers and the existing evidence implicates breeding coyotes in the majority of livestock losses Management approaches that target these problem individuals will be the most effective way to reduce livestock losses This dissertation examines coyote long range vocal communication and the likely usefulness of recorded vocalizations for selective coyote control The information content of barks and howls is important because coyotes may recognize vocalizing individuals This could cause coyotes to respond differently to playbacks depending on the individuals used It is also important to understand how vocal characteristics change over biologically relevant distances since these changes provide insights into the practical communicative significance of long range vocalizations I investigated whether coyote barks and howls were individually distinctive using 293 barks and 280 howls from 7 coyotes Barks and howls were individually specified discriminant analysis correctly classified the barks of 5 coyotes 69% of the time and the howls of 6 coyotes 79% of the time Howl characteristics did not degrade with distance and discriminant analysis was 75% accurate at assigning howls recorded at multiple distances to 6 individuals Bark characteristics were unstable with distance and it is unlikely that barks could be used for individual recognition Howls and barks probably serve separate functions howls are optimized to convey information while barks are suitable for attracting attention and for facilitating distance estimation Effective playbacks should incorporate both types of vocalization so that the complementary information they contain is available to listeners A year long experiment investigated the selectivity and efficacy of a variety of acoustic stimuli for calling coyotes Transients rarely responded vocally and territorial coyotes commonly responded to group coyote vocalizations During optimal conditions vocal response rates were over 55% for territorial males 42% for alpha females 11% for beta females and below 4% for transients Territorial coyotes were more likely to approach playbacks than transients and coyotes more readily approached group howls than other playback types When conditions were optimal approach response rates were 47% for alphas 49% for betas and 27% for transients These results suggest that playbacks can be used for selective coyote control
