Tourism Mobilities Development Sparsely Populated:

Tourism, Mobilities, and Development in Sparsely Populated Areas Doris Carson, Dean Carson, Linda Lundmark, 2017-10-02 Tourism mobilities are not restricted to the movement of tourists between places of origin and destinations. Particularly in more peripheral remote or sparsely populated destinations workers and residents are also likely to be frequently moving between locations. Such destinations attract seasonal or temporary residents sometimes with only loose ties to the tourism industry. These flows of mobile populations are accompanied by flows of other resources money knowledge ideas and innovations which can be used to help the economic and social development of the destination. This book examines key aspects of the human mobilities associated with tourism in sparsely populated areas and investigates how new mobility patterns inspired by technological economic political and social change provide both opportunities and risks for those areas. Examples are drawn from the northern peripheries of Europe and the north of Australia and the book provides a framework for continuing research into the role that tourism and new mobilities can play in regional development in these locations. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Scandinavian Journal of Hospitality and Tourism.

Jóhannesdóttir,2023-11-15 This open access book examines places on the margins and the dynamics through which a marginal position of a place is created Specifically it explores how places mostly in sparsely populated areas often perceived as immobile and frozen in time come into being and develop through interference of everyday mobilities and creative practices that cut across the spheres of culture and nature as usually defined Through fieldwork and case studies from areas in Iceland Finland Greenland and Scotland the book s twelve chapters draw out the multiple relations through which places emerge where people compose their lives as best they can with their surroundings A special concern is to explore the links between travelling landscape and material culture and how places and margins are enacted through mobilities and creative practices of humans and other beings The emphasis on mobility disturbs the perception of a place as a bounded entity and
