War Is Not Inevitable On The Psychology Of War And Aggression:

War Is Not Inevitable Henri Parens, 2014-07-22 In 1932 Einstein asked Freud Is there any way of delivering mankind from the menace of war Freud answered that war is inevitable because humans have an instinct to self destroy a death instinct which we must externalize to survive But nearly four decades of study of aggression reveal that rather than being an inborn drive destructiveness is generated in us by experiences of excessive psychic pain In War Is Not Inevitable On the Psychology of War and Aggression Henri Parens argues that the death instinct based model of aggression can neither be proved nor disproved as Freud s answer is untestable By contrast the multi trends theory of aggression is provable and has greater heuristic value than does a death instinct based model of aggression When we look for causes for war we turn to history as well as national ethnic territorial and or political issues among many others but we also tend to ignore the psychological factors that play a large role Parens discusses such psychological factors that seem to lead large groups into conflict Central among these are the psychodynamics of large group narcissism Interactional conditions stand out hyper narcissistic large groups have in history caused much narcissistic injury to those they believe they are superior to But this is commonly followed by the narcissistically injured group s experiencing high level hostile destructiveness toward their injury perpetrator which in time will compel them to revenge Among groups that have been engaged in serial conflicts wars have followed from this psychodynamic narcissism based cyclicity Parens details some of the psychodynamics that led from World War I to World War II and their respective aftermath and he addresses how major factors that gave rise to these wars must can and have been counteracted In doing so Parens considers strategies by which civilization has and is constructively preventing wars as well as the need for further innovative efforts to achieve that end Signs, Intentionality, and
