Ute Texts Culture And Language Use:

Language Contact and Change in the Americas Andrea L. Berez-Kroeker, Diane M. Hintz, Carmen Jany, 2016-04-19

This unique collection of articles in honor of Marianne Mithun represents the very latest in research on language contact and language change in the Indigenous languages of the Americas. The book aims to provide new theoretical and empirical insights into how and why languages change especially with regard to contact phenomena in languages of North America, Meso America and South America. The individual chapters cover a broad range of topics including sound change, morphosyntactic change, lexical semantics, grammaticalization, language endangerment and discourse pragmatic change. With chapters from distinguished scholars and talented newcomers alike, this book will be welcomed by anyone with an interest in internally and externally motivated language change.

Interfaces in Functional Discourse Grammar Lucía

Contreras-García, Daniel García Velasco, 2021-08-23 In grammar design a basic distinction is made between derivational and modular architectures. This raises the question of which organization of grammar can deal with linguistic phenomena more appropriately. The studies contained in the present volume explore the interface relations between different levels of linguistic representation in Functional Discourse Grammar as presented in Hengeveld and Mackenzie 2008 and Keizer 2015. This theory analyses linguistic expressions at four linguistic levels: interpersonal, representational, morphosyntactic and phonological. The articles address issues such as the possible correspondences and mismatches between those levels as well as the conditions which constrain the combinations of levels in well formed expressions. Additionally, the theory is tested by examining various grammatical phenomena with a focus both on the English language and on typological adequacy: anaphora, raising, phonological reduction, noun incorporation, reflexives and reciprocals, serial verbs, the passive voice, time measurement, constructions, coordination, nominal modification and connectives. Overall, the volume provides both theoretical and descriptive insights which are of relevance to linguistics in general.

Highly complex syllable structure: A typological and diachronic study Shelece Easterday, 2019-11-13 The syllable is a natural unit of organization in spoken language whose strongest cross linguistic patterns are often explained in terms of a universal preference for the CV structure. Syllable patterns involving long sequences of consonants are both typologically rare and theoretically marginalized, with few approaches treating these as natural or unproblematic structures. This book is an investigation of the properties of languages with highly complex syllable patterns. The two aims are i) to establish whether these languages share other linguistic features in common such that they constitute a distinct linguistic type and ii) to identify possible diachronic paths and natural mechanisms by which these patterns come about in the history of a language. These issues are investigated in a diversified sample of 100 languages, 25 of which have highly complex syllable patterns. Languages with highly complex syllable structure are characterized by a number of phonetic, phonological and morphological features which serve to set them apart from languages with simpler syllable patterns. These include specific segmental and suprasegmental properties, a higher prevalence of vowel reduction processes with extreme outcomes and higher average morpheme word ratios The results suggest that highly complex syllable structure is a linguistic type distinct from but sharing some characteristics with other proposed holistic phonological types including stress timed and consonantal languages The results point to word stress and specific patterns of gestural organization as playing important roles in the diachronic development of these patterns out of simpler syllable structures
