

The background of the entire image is a dark, textured surface, possibly black or very dark blue, with a fine, woven pattern. Overlaid on this background is a multitude of white birds, likely seagulls or terns, captured in various stages of flight. Their wings are spread wide, and they are scattered across the entire frame, creating a sense of movement and depth. The birds are more concentrated in some areas than others, but they cover most of the surface.
