Zwinderman,2015-03-27 The current book is the first publication of a complete overview of machine learning methodologies for the medical and health sector It was written as a training companion and as a must read not only for physicians and students but also for any one involved in the process and progress of health and health care In eighty chapters eighty different machine learning methodologies are reviewed in combination with data examples for self assessment Each chapter can be studied without the need to consult other chapters The amount of data stored in the world s databases doubles every 20 months and clinicians familiar with traditional statistical methods are at a loss to analyze them Traditional methods have indeed difficulty to identify outliers in large datasets and to find patterns in big data and data with multiple exposure outcome variables In addition analysis rules for surveys and questionnaires which are currently common methods of data collection are essentially missing Fortunately the new discipline machine learning is able to cover all of these limitations So far medical professionals have been rather reluctant to use machine learning Also in the field of diagnosis making few doctors may want a computer checking them are interested in collaboration with a computer or with computer engineers Adequate health and health care will however soon be impossible without proper data supervision from modern machine learning methodologies like cluster models neural networks and other data mining methodologies Each chapter starts with purposes and scientific questions Then step by step analyses using data examples are given Finally a paragraph with conclusion and references to the corresponding sites of three introductory textbooks previously written by the same authors is given Bulletin New Haven Free Public Library,1900 *Report of the ...
