nuclear socio political economy which highlights six factors necessary for embarking on nuclear power programs 1 national security and secrecy 2 technocratic ideology 3 economic interventionism 4 a centrally coordinated energy stakeholder network 5 subordination of opposition to political authority and 6 social peripheralization The book validates this theory by confirming the presence of these six drivers during the initial nuclear power developmental periods in eight countries the United States France Japan Russia the former Soviet Union South Korea Canada China and India The authors then apply this framework as a predictive tool to evaluate contemporary nuclear power trends They discuss what this theory means for developed and developing countries which exhibit the potential for nuclear development on a major scale and examine how the new renaissance of nuclear power may affect the promotion of renewable energy global energy security and development policy as a whole The volume also assesses the influence of climate change and the recent nuclear accident in Fukushima Japan on the nuclear power industry s trajectory This book will be of interest to students of energy policy and security nuclear proliferation international security global governance and IR in general ASHRAE Journal ,1962-07
