on history instruction and learning is emerging as an exciting new field of inquiry The editors prepared this volume because the field is at an important moment in its development a stage where there is research of sufficient depth and breadth to warrant a collection of representative pieces The field of research on history teaching and learning connects with both traditional research on social studies and with recent cognitive analyses of domains such as mathematics and physics However the newer research goes beyond these activities as well Where traditional research approaches to social studies instruction and learning have focused on curriculum they have avoided the study of purely disciplinary features the textual components of history and the concomitant demands as well as the nature of various learners Where recent cognitive analyses of mathematics and physics have dealt with misconceptions and knowledge construction they have avoided topics such as perspective taking interpretation and rhetorical layerings The new work by contrast has been concerned with these issues as well as the careful analyses of the nature of historical tasks and the nature of disciplinary and instructional explanations The lines of research presented in these chapters are both compelling and diverse and include a range of topical questions such as What affects the quality of teaching How are historical documents interpreted in the writing of history How is history explained What are the classroom demands on an elementary school social studies teacher What does text accomplish or fail to accomplish in educational settings How do teachers think about particular topics for history teaching Although much of the research reflects a grounding in or the influence of cognitive psychology not all of it derives from that tradition Traditions of rhetoric curriculum analysis and developmental psychology are also woven throughout the chapters The editors envision this volume as a contribution to educational research in a subject matter and as a tool for practitioners concerned with the improvement of instruction in history They also anticipate that it will contribute to cognitive science

't Hart, Joost Jonker, Jan Luiten van Zanden, 1997-09-11 Overview of the financial history of the Netherlands from the sixteenth century onwards Ancient Egypt Paul Flux, 2001 An Age of Risk Emily C. Nacol, 2016-08-30 In An Age of Risk Emily Nacol shows that risk now treated as a permanent feature of our lives did not always govern understandings of the future Focusing on the epistemological political and economic writings of Thomas Hobbes John Locke David Hume and Adam Smith Nacol explains that in seventeenth and eighteenth century Britain political and economic thinkers reimagined the future as a terrain of risk characterized by probabilistic calculation prediction and control In these early modern sources Nacol contends we see three crucial developments in thought on risk and politics While early modern thinkers differentiated uncertainty about the future from probabilistic calculations of risk they remained attentive to the ways uncertainty and risk remained in a conceptual tangle a problem that constrained good decision making They developed sophisticated theories of trust and credit as crucial background conditions for prudent risk taking and offered complex depictions of the relationships and behaviors that would make risk taking more palatable They also developed two narratives that persist in subsequent accounts of risk risk as a threat to security and risk as an opportunity for profit Looking at how these narratives are entwined in early modern thought Nacol locates the origins of our own ambivalence about risk taking By the end of the eighteenth century she argues a new type of political actor would emerge from this ambivalence one who approached risk with fear rather than hope By placing a fresh lens on early modern writing An Age of Risk demonstrates how new and evolving orientations toward risk influenced approaches to politics and commerce that continue to this day A History of Autofiction Alexandra Effe, 2025-10-02 Mapping the largely neglected history of autofictional literature and describing developments against socio historical changes cultural trends and philosophical psychological discussions around self and mind this book both explores and historicizes autofiction s contemporary boom Beginning with the genre s emergence in 18th century England against changes in publishing culture and author concept and then tracing forms and functions of autofictional literature up to the contemporary moment A History of Autofiction highlights why select narrative strategies are abandoned transformed or repurposed which forms affordances and effects of autofictional modes are persistent and which were particular to a given period With focus on salient authors and texts from anglophone autofiction around the world and shining spotlights on insightful socio historical and biographical contexts Alexandra Effe foregrounds autofictional elements of works not previously considered for these dimensions and offers fresh perspectives on a range of canonical autofictional texts interdisciplinary in approach the book sheds light on autofictional phenomena through research in neuroscience psychology and philosophy of mind while demonstrating that autofictional literature holds insights for cognitive science Developing a cognitive holistic approach to the triad of author text and reader the book allows for a novel and more encompassing understanding of an important current cultural trend and of its diachronic development
