Work Sights Industry Nineteenth Century Technology:

Before Photography Kirsten Belgum, Vance Byrd, John D. Benjamin, 2021-03-08 Recent years have seen a wealth of new scholarship on the history of photography cinema digital media and video games yet less attention has been devoted to earlier forms of visual culture The nineteenth century witnessed a dramatic proliferation of new technologies devices and print processes which provided growing audiences with access to more visual material than ever before This volume brings together the best aspects of interdisciplinary scholarship to enhance our understanding of the production dissemination and consumption of visual media prior to the predominance of photographic reproduction By setting these examples against the backdrop of demographic educational political commercial scientific and industrial shifts in Central Europe these essays reveal the diverse ways that innovation in visual culture affected literature philosophy journalism the history of perception exhibition culture and the representation of nature and human life in both print and material culture in local national transnational and global contexts The Baldwin Locomotive Works, 1831-1915 John K. Brown, 2001-09 The largest maker of heavy machinery in Gilded Age America and an important global exporter the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia achieved renown as one of the nation's most successful and important firms Relying on gifted designers and skilled Industrial Buildings Michael Stratton, 2003-09-02 This book gives guidance as to the types of building stock offering greatest potential for conversion that are likely to be viable and sustainable Chapters are contributed by key experts in the field Absentee Ownership and Business Enterprise in Recent Times Thorstein Veblen, 1923 The American Reaper Gordon M. Winder, 2016-04-01 The American Reaper adopts a network approach to account for the international diffusion of harvesting technology from North America from the invention of the reaper through to the formation of a dominant transnational corporation International Harvester Much previous historical research into industrial networks focuses on industrial districts within metropolitan centres but by focusing on harvesting a typically rural technology this book is able to analyse the spread of technological knowledge through a series of local networks and across national boundaries In doing so it argues that the industry developed through a relatively stable stage from the 1850s into the 1890s during which time many firms shared knowledge within and outside the US through patent licensing to spread the diffusion of the American style of machines to establishments located around the industrial world This positive cooperation was further enhanced through sales networks that appear to be early expressions of managerial firms The book also reinterprets the rise of giant corporations especially International Harvester Corporation IHC arguing that mass production was achieved in Chicago in the 1880s where unprecedented urban growth made possible a break with the constraints felt elsewhere in the dispersed production system It unleashed an unchecked competitive market economy with destructive tendencies throughout the transnational American reaper networks a previously stable and expanding production system This is significant because the rise of corporate capital in this industry is usually explained as an outworking of national natural advantage as an ingenious harnessing of science and technology to solve production problems and as a rational solution to the problems associated with the worst forms of unregulated competition that emerged as independent firms developed from small scale artisanal production to large scale manufacturers on their own and within the separate and isolated US economy The first study dedicated to the development and diffusion of American harvesting machine technology this book will appeal to scholars from a diverse range of fields including economic history business history the history of knowledge transfer historical geography and economic geography Absentee ownership and business enterprise in recent times; the case of America Thorstein
