Excerpt from book CHAPTER III

A few days later the Lieutenant and his retinue were marching with quick pace towards Lubni. When they had forded the Dnieper they marched along the broad highway across the steppes which connects Chigrin with Lubni, winding through Juki Semimogil and Khorol. Similar roads led from the capital of the Prince's territory to Kiev. In earlier times, before the battle which Hetman Jolkyevski fought against Solonitza, there were no roads at all; one had to travel from Lubni to Kiev across the steppes and over the desert. The way to Chigrin was by water, and on returning one passed through Khorol. Taking it all together, the country beyond the Dnieper, the former land of the Polovtsy, was a desert scarcely more populous than the Wild Lands, often infested by Tartars and without protection from the bands of Zaporozhians. On the banks of the Sula rose immense forests teeming with life, seldom traversed by the foot of man. At certain places on the slopes of the Sula and Ruda Slepored, Koro, or Javtsa, Pshol, and other greater and smaller rivers and streams, marshes had formed. These were partly overgrown with thick brush and forests and partly open land resembling a meadow. In these woods and morasses animals of all descriptions found a convenient hiding place. In the darkest depths of the forests roamed an immense number of aurochs, bears, and wild boars, and also an incalculable number of wolves, lynxes, martens, herds of deer and red antelopes. In the swamps and pools beavers built their dams, and the saying was current among Zaporozhians that among these beavers there were some a century old and snow white with age. On the high dry steppes roamed herds of wild horses with shaggy heads and bloodshot eyes. The rivers teemed with fish.

An Historian in Peace and War T.G. Otte, 2016-04-15 The First World War and subsequent peace settlement shaped the course of the twentieth century and the profound significance of these events were not lost on Harold Temperley whose diaries are presented here An established scholar and later one of Britain's foremost modern and diplomatic historians Temperley enlisted in the army at the outbreak of the war in August 1914 Invalided home from the Dardanelles campaign in 1915 he spent the remainder of the war and its aftermath as a general staff officer in military intelligence Here he played a significant role in preparing British strategy for the eventual peace conference and in finalising several post war boundaries in Eastern Europe Later in the 1920s and 1930s Temperley was to co edit the British diplomatic documents on the origins of the war and the vicissitudes of modern Great Power politics were to be his principal preoccupation Beginning in June 1916 the diary presents a more or less daily record of Temperley's activities and observations throughout the war and subsequent peace negotiations As a professional historian he appreciated the significance of eyewitness accounts and if Temperley was not at the very heart of Allied decision making during those years he certainly had a ringside seat Trained to observe accurately he recorded the concerns and confusions of wartime conscious always of the historical significance of what he observed As a result there are few sources that match Temperley's diary which presents a fascinating and unique perspective upon the politics and diplomacy of the First World War and its aftermath
