

The background of the entire image is a photograph of a sunset over the ocean. The sun is a bright, glowing orb in the upper right corner, casting a long, shimmering path of light across the water's surface. The sky is a gradient of warm colors, from a pale yellow near the horizon to a deeper orange and then a soft blue at the top. The ocean is dark with white-capped waves breaking in the foreground. The beach is visible at the very bottom, appearing as a dark, sandy strip.

Voyage Round World 1740 44 Illustrated:

A Voyage Round the World in the Years 1740-44 (Illustrated Edition) George Anson, 2015-11-25 Anson had a long and illustrious career in the Royal Navy and the memoir of his circumnavigation was a huge popular success when it was first published in 1748 Fight For The Flags [Illustrated Edition] W. H. Fitchett, 2015-11-06 Includes 15 portraits and 14 maps W H Fitchett brings to life some of the most notable clashes of arms between the British and the various enemies that they have fought against from Minden to the Crimean War from Blenheim to Salamanca Fights for the Flag is as good as Deeds that Won the Empire To say more than this in praise of the book before us is unnecessary for Deeds that Won the Empire was one of the best collections of popular battle studies ever given to the public Mr Fitchett shows in Fights for the Flag all the good qualities which he showed in his first volume There is the same admirable clearness of style the same comprehensive sympathy the same power to stir the blood and to paint noble deeds in fitting words We note too the same excellent use of telling quotations Whenever he can Mr Fitchett gives what the Generals said in their own words and not a mere rechauff of their utterances Thus Mr Fitchett's work though necessarily short and compressed is never dull Again he shows here as in his former book the same power of describing localities and for bringing before one the place of battle No writer ever had more completely the art of making one realise how opposing forces move both by land and sea The Spectator
