UNIT BUNDLE

Such a fascinating process!

evidence for EVOLUTION

Evolution is the change in the heritable characteristics of a population over time

Evolution is a key to understanding the history of life on Earth

HOLOGRAPHIC STRUCTURES

Different species may share physical features because they share a common ancestor. We call these features 'homologous structures'. An example of this is the forelimb of the vertebrate. The pattern of bones is very similar across.

Evolution by natural selection

ADAPTATION

Even though some features with and they are evidence example birds feet wings but they are the emergence of happen due to the environment or selective pressure have evolved today

THE THEORY OF NATURAL SELECTION

Charles Darwin proposed the theory of natural selection. He stated that all living organisms have a common ancestor. There are four main principles of natural selection:

1. Not all individuals survive due to predators or competition.
2. Only individuals that are better adapted will survive to their offspring.
3. Over many generations, the population will change.
4. This change is called evolution.

THE FOSSIL RECORD

What are fossils & how do we date them? Fossils are the preserved remains or traces of dead organisms. They are usually found in rocks but sometimes they are found in permafrost or preserved in amber. We call all of the fossils found the 'fossil record'. It is important to know the age of each fossil so we can work out how species evolved over time. Scientists can date fossils using the 'layer' of rock they are found in. The oldest rocks are always found in the deepest layers - this is known as the law of superposition. They can also directly date fossils using radioactive decay of certain elements such as carbon.

Fossils are found in the layers of rock. It is called the 'fossil record'.

How does the fossil record provide evidence of evolution?

Fossils show a sequence of evolution through the gradual change of structure over time. For example, the fossil record shows the evolution of the horse from a small, three-toed animal to a large, single-toed animal.
