This Way To The Revolution A Memoir:

This Way to the Revolution Erin Pizzey, 2011 By the early 1970s the women's movement was sweeping the Western world Erin Pizzey was one of millions hoping for change but found herself disagreeing with its more radical aims Committed to the idea of women offering mutual support she opened a community centre in a house in Chiswick London Soon the house filled up with battered women and children The offspring of violent parents herself she understood their plight Domestic abuse was regarded as something for families to settle behind closed doors and a woman who left a man was deemed to have made herself homeless with her children sent into care Erin established the first refuge in the world for battered women and children in 1971 She had a bitter fight on her hands not only with the women's movement outraged by her findings that women were as capable of violence as men but by priests who called her a marriage wrecker as well as councils social services and law courts which tried to get the overcrowded shelter closed down Before long though people began to realize the value of her work

Censorship and the Limits of the Literary Nicole Moore, 2015-08-27 Though literature and censorship have been conceived as long time adversaries this collection seeks to understand the degree to which they have been dialectical terms each producing the other coeval and mutually constitutive On the one hand literary censorship has been posited as not only inescapable but definitive even foundational to speech itself On the other especially after the opening of the USSR's spekstrahn those enormous collections of literature forbidden under the Soviets the push to redefine censorship expansively has encountered cogent criticism Scholars describing the centralised control of East German print publication for example have wanted to insist on the difference of pre publication state censorship from more mundane forms of speech regulation in democracies Work on South African apartheid censorship and book banning in colonial countries also demonstrates censorship's formative role in the institutional structures of literature beyond the metropole Censorship and the Limits of the Literary examines these and other developments across twelve countries from the Enlightenment to the present day offering case studies from the French revolution to Internet China Is literature ever without censorship Does censorship need the literary In a globalizing era for culture does censorship represent the final failed version of national control

Memoir of Fleeming Jenkin F.R.S., L.L.D Robert Louis Stevenson,1907 Popular Memories of the Mao Era Sebastian Veg,2019-01-10 The present volume provides an overview of new forms of popular memory in particular critical memory of the Mao era Focusing on the processes of private production public dissemination and social sanctioning of narratives of the past in contemporary China it examines the relation between popular memories and their social construction as historical knowledge The three parts of the book are devoted to the shifting boundary between private and public in the press and media the reconfiguration of elite and popular discourses in cultural productions film visual art and literature and the emergence of new discourses of knowledge through innovative readings of unofficial sources Popular memories pose a challenge to the existing historiography of the first thirty years of the People's Republic of China Despite the recent backlash these more critical reflections are beginning to transform the mainstream narrative of the Mao era in China Public discussions of key episodes in the history of the People's Republic in particular the Anti Rightist Movement of 1957 the Great Famine of 1959 1961 and the Cultural Revolution have proliferated in the last fifteen years These discussions are qualitatively different from previous expressions of traumatic or nostalgic memories of Mao in the 1980s and the 1990s respectively They reflect a growing dissatisfaction with the authoritarian control over history exercised by the Chinese state and often they make use of the new spaces provided for counter hegemonic narratives by social media and the growing private economy in the 2000s Unofficial or independent journals self published books social media groups independent documentary films private museums oral history projects and archival research by amateur historians all of which analyzed in this collection have contributed to these embryonic public or semi public dialogues An excellent guide to the independent journalism cultural production and amateur histories that are transforming the mainstream narrative of the Mao era in China Rich in detail and sound in analysis these studies document the emergence of critical memory in Chinese society A valuable resource for students and scholars Timothy Cheek University of British Columbia author of The Intellectual in Modern Chinese History Popular memories of the Mao era are signposts of contemporary politics and culture This volume features exciting new research by distinguished scholars Extremely rich and readable the chapters in this collection illuminate both China's past and present A timely and important contribution Guobin Yang University of Pennsylvania author of The Red Guard Generation and Political Activism in China Encyclopedia of Diasporas Melvin Ember, Carol R. Ember, Ian Skoggard, 2004-11-30 Immigration is a topic that is as important among anthropologists as it is the general public Almost every culture has experienced adaptation and assimilation when immigrating to a new country and culture usually leaving for what is perceived as a better life Not only does this diaspora change the country of adoption but also the country of origin Many large nations in the world have absorbed and continue to absorb large numbers of immigrants The foreseeable future will see a continuation of large scale immigration as many countries experience civil war and secessionist pressures Currently there is no reference work that describes the impact upon the immigrants and the immigrant societies relevant to the world's cultures and provides an overview of important topics in the world's diasporas The encyclopedia consists of two volumes covering three main sections Diaspora Overviews covers over 20 ethnic groups that have experienced voluntary or forced immigration These essays discuss the history behind the social economic and political reasons for leaving the original countries and the cultures in the new places Topics discusses the impact and assimilation that the immigrant cultures experience in their adopted cultures including the arts they bring the struggles they face and some of the cities that are in the forefront of receiving immigrant cultures Diaspora Communities include over 60 portraits of specific diaspora communities Each portrait follows a standard outline to facilitate comparisons The Encyclopedia of Diasporas can be used both to gain a general understanding of immigration and immigrants and to find out about particular cultures topics and communities It will prove of great value to researchers and students curriculum developers teachers and government officials It brings together the disciplines of anthropology social studies political studies international studies and immigrant and immigration studies

Negative Exposures Margaret Hillenbrand, 2020-03-06 When nations decide to disown their troubled pasts how does this strategic disavowal harden into social fact In Negative Exposures Margaret Hillenbrand investigates the erasure of key aspects of such momentous events as the Nanjing Massacre the Cultural Revolution and the Tiananmen Square protests from the Chinese historical consciousness not due to amnesia or censorship but through the operations of public secrecy Knowing what not to know she argues has many stakeholders willing and otherwise who keep quiet to protect themselves or their families out of shame pragmatism or the palliative effects of silence Hillenbrand shows how secrecy works as a powerful structuring force in Chinese society one hiding in plain sight and identifies aesthetic artifacts that serve as modes of reckoning against this phenomenon She analyses the proliferation of photo forms remediations of well known photographs of troubling historical events rendered in such media as paint celluloid fabric digital imagery and tattoos as imaginative spaces in which the shadows of secrecy are provocatively outlined
