

An illustration of a woman with long brown hair, wearing a green apron with a red fruit design over a white long-sleeved shirt, sitting cross-legged on a wooden floor in a meditative pose with her eyes closed. In the background, a baby is in a crib, a man is running, and there is a laptop and papers on a desk. The title text is overlaid on the bottom half of the image.

Understanding Managing Extreme Anxiety Naturally:

Natural Disasters and Risk Management in Canada Nirupama Agrawal, 2018-03-27 These chapters provide valuable and comprehensive information on a variety of hazards including both scientific and social aspects of disasters. The work introduces the concept of large medium and small scale hazards and includes many useful case studies as well as working examples of theoretical concepts. As readers will acknowledge today the distinction between natural and technological hazards is becoming blurred and a new concept of NATECH hazards is evolving. For permanent hazards such as tides wind waves coastal erosion and climate change routine predictions are made whereas for evanescent hazards including droughts sea level rise and coastal subsidence monitoring of various parameters is the norm. Only for episodic hazards for example hurricanes winter storms tsunamis and river floods early warning systems are used with varying degrees of success. The book explores how for certain episodic hazards like tornadoes landslides forest fires snow avalanches and volcanic eruptions the early warning systems are still in various stages of development. Readers will gain knowledge of theoretical and practical concepts of risk evaluation which assist in better understanding of disaster dynamics and readers will become better equipped in quantification of disaster risk and vulnerability. The author explains how risk reduction initiatives taking into account stakeholders participation and perception can provide a roadmap to building resilient communities and cities. This book will be useful not only to practitioners of disaster management but also to research scholars and graduate students. It is highly readable and will appeal more broadly too to all those who are interested in the very latest thinking on and expert analysis of hazards and disasters.

Focus on Federal Employee Health and Assistance Programs, 1990 Dealing with Crisis James Babb, Takashi Iida, 2023-06-01 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 License. It is free to read download and share on Elgaronline.com. Reflecting on the depth of the experience with crises this innovative book demonstrates what the world can learn from insights into crises from the Japanese perspective. Taking an institutionalist approach with a strong historical precedent leading scholars in the social sciences and law explore how better to deal with foreseeable and unforeseen crises.

Utilizing AI and Machine Learning for Natural Disaster Management Satishkumar, D., Sivaraja, M., 2024-04-29 Acute events of natural origin spanning atmospheric biological geophysical hydrologic and oceanographic realms persistently menace societies globally. Approximately 160 million people annually bear the brunt of these disasters with certain regions facing disproportionate impacts. The lack of predictability intensifies the challenge creating intercommunal capacity gaps and amplifying the dire consequences. Utilizing AI and Machine Learning for Natural Disaster Management provides instances of ML in predicting earthquakes. By leveraging seismic data AI systems can analyze magnitude and patterns providing invaluable insights to forecast earthquake occurrences and aftershocks. Similarly the book unveils the potential of ML in simulating floods by recording and analyzing rainfall patterns from previous years. The predictive power extends to hurricanes where data on wind speed rainfall temperature and moisture converge to anticipate future occurrences potentially saving millions in property damage

Towards an Understanding of the Cognitive

Mechanisms Involved in Threat Processing and Perception Andras Norbert Zsido, Carlos M. Coelho, David S.

March, Michael Craig Hout, Jakub Polák, 2024-06-05 Much remains unknown about the cognitive mechanisms and information processing biases involved in threat detection or the acquisition and maintenance of threat associations To complicate the picture these mechanisms and biases likely differ between various types of threats e.g. those originating from animals weapons social situations or groups There has been a recent push to highlight ways of improving methods used in research in this area which has likewise prompted theoretical revisions It is therefore important to continue clarifying the cognitive mechanism e.g. perception attention memory learning underlying threat processing to develop a better understanding of how they affect social outcomes For example very little is known about how social identity hierarchy group structure and other social cues affect our responses in threatening situations As the social environment impacts our daily psychological functioning one might suspect it has an important role in threat processing as well
