Understanding Dementia The Man With The Worried Eyes:

Understanding Dementia Richard Cheston, Mike Bender, 1999-01-01 Over the last ten years a number of new concepts have emerged within social psychology gerontology socio linguistics and psychotherapy which present a challenge to the view of dementia as simply an organic illness These ideas have led to service innovations including the development of support groups for people with dementia the adaptation of psychotherapeutic approaches to this client group and the development of methods of care evaluation from the perspective of the dementia sufferer This book seeks to summarize these new ideas thereby bringing together for the first time a wide range of critical thinking relating to old age and dementia The authors aim to advance a psychological framework from which to understand the experience of dementia from the perspective of the dementia sufferer so making intelligible the symptoms of dementia and setting out new avenues of care such as the need to adopt psychotherapeutic counselling approaches as an integral part of care Including background clear argument and practical guidelines this insightful and comprehensive study makes an important contribution to the currently emerging trend in dementia care towards person centred work Understanding Dementia Richard Cheston, 19??

Understanding Dementia, 2005 Psychosocial Studies of the Individual's Changing Perspectives in Alzheimer's Disease Dick-Muehlke, Cordula, Li, Ruobing, Orleans, Myron, 2015-08-31 Cognitive impairment through Alzheimer's disease or other related forms of dementia is a serious concern for afflicted individuals and their caregivers Understanding patients mental state and combatting social stigmas are important considerations in caring for cognitively impaired individuals Psychosocial Studies of the Individual's Changing Perspectives in Alzheimer's Disease describes programs and strategies that professional and family caregivers can implement to engage and improve the quality of life of persons suffering from cognitive impairment Including real world cases by international experts and a personal approach to the subject this book is an important resource for caregivers researchers and families living with dementia Social Work Practice with People with Dementia Peter Scourfield, 2022-07-08 Social Work Practice with People with Dementia critically discusses the cultural and discursive contexts in which social work with dementia takes place This is because how we think about dementia influences how we treat people living with the condition The book also explains the demographic context that has made dementia a global public health priority in recent years The different forms of dementia are discussed in a way that is accessible to a non medical readership The book discusses the different settings and circumstances in which social work with people with dementia and their carers takes place and examines the chief elements of the social work role In doing this it explains the professional knowledge skills and values that social workers need in order to practice effectively in this area of growing importance Part of this is appreciating how approaches to dementia care have evolved over time In this context the book discusses how the dominant bio medical model has been challenged by person centred and rights based approaches As a key part of social work is to offer people choices the book provides information about a wide range of health social care and other services that are available whilst also highlighting the gaps that exist for different groups and in different areas Case studies and activities help the reader apply theory to practice Social Work Practice with People with Dementia will be of particular interest to social work students and early career social workers primarily in a UK context However it contains much relevant information about dementia and dementia practice for anyone involved with adult health and social care both in the UK and around the world

Living with

Alzheimer's Renée L. Beard, 2016-04-26 News of Alzheimer's disease is constantly in the headlines Every day we hear heart wrenching stories of people caring for a loved one who has become a shell of their former self of projections about rising incidence rates and of cures that are just around the corner However we don't see or hear from the people who actually have the disease In Living with Alzheimer's Renée L. Beard argues that the exclusively negative portrayals of Alzheimer's are grossly inaccurate To understand what life with memory loss is really like Beard draws on intensive observations of nearly 100 seniors undergoing cognitive evaluation as well as post diagnosis interviews with individuals experiencing late in life forgetfulness Since we all forget sometimes seniors with an Alzheimer's diagnosis ultimately need to be socialized into medicalized interpretations of their forgetfulness In daily life people with the disease are forced to manage stigma and the presumption of incompetence on top of the actual symptoms of their ailment The well meaning public and not their dementia becomes the major barrier to a happy life for those affected Beard also examines how these perceptions affect treatment for Alzheimer's Interviews with clinicians and staff from the Alzheimer's Association reveal that despite the best of intentions pejorative framings of life with dementia fuel both clinical practice and advocacy efforts These professionals perpetuate narratives about self loss impending cures and the economic and emotional burden to families and society even if they do not personally believe them Yet Beard also concludes that in spite of these trends most of the diagnosed individuals in her study achieve a graceful balance between accepting the medical label and resisting the social stigma that accompanies it In stark contrast to the messages we receive this book provides an unprecedented view into the ways that people with early Alzheimer s actively and deliberately navigate their lives Valuing Older People Elspeth Stirling,2010-05-17 This book examines the growing importance of positive psychology and its connection to later life Applies Social Role Valorisation SVR principles to care of older people particularly those with seriously disabling conditions such as dementia stroke and multiple health problems Provides a comprehensive body of positive principles and practical approaches for those who care for older people Examines the impact of the devaluation of older people s lives in the context of societies dependent on technology Demonstrates how more age inclusive societies and open awareness of later life issues are fundamental to strong communities as well as to personal happiness and resilience Materialities of Age and Ageing: Concepts of a Material Gerontology Grit Höppner,Monika Urban,2019-06-18 In gerontological research the understanding of age and ageing changed in the last decade Biologic determined explanations no longer prevail in this research field Instead ideas of social constructivism are frequently used These ideas define the state of age and the process of ageing as social constructions steeping ageing in social and cultural assumptions ascriptions and expectations From a social constructivist perspective age and ageing are not just identified as dependency deficit and need for care as it was foremost accelerated from a biological perspective but with the life course and thus with individual lifestyles experiences attitudes and practices as well as institutional and economic structures A prominent social constructivist concept is doing age Similar to doing gender the concept of doing age assumes age as taking place in the form of a social praxis within everyday life interactions between people and thus in performances embedded in discourses through which social hierarchies and ideals proceed Despite the paradigm shift that social constructivist concepts enable in gerontological thinking they reveal their blind spot when it comes to the materiality of ageing and thus to fleshy sensual experiences human and non human ontologies and agencies Addressing these materialities of ageing brings up its own critique on definitions of ageing bodies and material environments This framing does not presume that age and ageing are solely products of human to human interactions or those of formative environments or of discourses Rather humans non humans and discourses become essential parts of ageing processes Such a material framing enables us new insights into forms of age and ageing and thus offers an opportunity for scholars to engage critically with materialities of age and ageing This eBook explores theoretical methodological and empirical concepts of such a Material Gerontology The Health Studies Companion Sophie Smailes,Clare Street,2017-09-16 A comprehensive introduction that provides essential information and advice on study skills research and careers for students of Health Studies Ideal pre course reading it covers the core components of the course reflective activities and stacks of useful resources to makes readers explore further and reflect on their learning Aspects of Social Work and Palliative Care Jonathan Parker,2005 This text provides a wide range of central issues in palliative care social work practice and brings together a number of authors with expertise in their particular areas of practice Emerging Developments in Pre-Therapy Garry Prouty, 2008 Pre therapy focuses on the lower levels of functioning learning disability regression chronic schizophrenia and dementia Pre therapy is a commitment to understand and treat the regressed levels of being in the world This book examines the theoretical growth resulting from pre therapy Managing Memory: Clinical Facts, Biomedical Negotiations, and Alzheimer's Identities Renee Lynn Beard, 2005 Methods 18 months of participant observation at two specialty clinics including 46 diagnoses of AD or MCI qualitative interviews and focus groups were conducted Data were analyzed using Grounded Theory The complete sample included 77 respondents focus groups with 32 diagnosed individuals focus groups with 12 care partners of diagnosed individuals and 33 in depth interviews 12 clinicians 12 Alzheimer's Association staff members and 9 diagnosed individuals Communication and the Care of People with Dementia John Killick, Kate Allan, 2001 This book argues that communication is at the heart of all approaches to dementia care and is an in depth exploration of ways of establishing and developing communication with people with dementia It examines both the nature of dementia as a condition and the subjective experience of those affected The authors consider in detail how communication between people with dementia and those who care for them changes and how it can be maintained and enhanced They include a significant amount of material quoted from people with dementia and suggest ways of interpreting their words and actions We learn about what it might be like to have dementia and what sort of help is needed by people in this situation Throughout the book the authors address the ethical issues and the implications for practice The combination of creativity and critical analysis which the joint authors as poet and psychologist bring to this book is especially productive The interweaving of substantial practice examples based on conversations with people with dementia give persuasive authority to the careful exposition and detailed analysis The book is much more than an exhortation to carers about how they should communicate It challenges them to understand themselves and shows how they might use themselves to engage with people with dementia Faith Gibson Emeritus Professor of Social Work Communication and the Care of People with Dementia is a key resource for students and professionals in health and social care work including those in such fields as social work nursing occupational therapy speech therapy physiotherapy clinical psychology geriatric medicine and the management of services Working with Older People and Their Families Mike Nolan, Sue Davies, Gordon Grant, 2001 Contributed by Jayne Brown Sue Davies Claire Ferguson Gordon Grant Elizabeth Hanson John Keady Janet Nolan Mike Nolan Jane Seymour Adult Education in Israel, 2010
