Understanding Urban Ecosystems A New Frontier For Science And Education:

Understanding Urban Ecosystems Alan R. Berkowitz, Charles H. Nilon, Karen S. Hollweg, 2006-05-29 Nowhere on Earth is the challenge for ecological understanding greater and yet more urgent than in those parts of the globe where human activity is most intense cities People need to understand how cities work as ecological systems so they can take control of the vital links between human actions and environmental quality and work for an ecologically and economically sustainable future An ecosystem approach integrates biological physical and social factors and embraces historical and geographical dimensions providing our best hope for coping with the complexity of cities This book is a first of its kind effort to bring together leaders in the biological physical and social dimensions of urban ecosystem research with leading education researchers administrators and practitioners to show how an understanding of urban ecosystems is vital for urban dwellers to grasp the fundamentals of ecological and environmental science and to understand their own environment Embracing

Diversity in the Learning Sciences Yasmin B. Kafai, 2012-10-12 More than a decade has passed since the First International Conference of the Learning Sciences ICLS was held at Northwestern University in 1991 The conference has now become an established place for researchers to gather The 2004 meeting is the first under the official sponsorship of the International Society of the Learning Sciences ISLS The theme of this conference is Embracing Diversity in the Learning Sciences As a field the learning sciences have always drawn from a diverse set of disciplines to study learning in an array of settings Psychology cognitive science anthropology and artificial intelligence have all contributed to the development of methodologies to study learning in schools museums and organizations As the field grows however it increasingly recognizes the challenges to studying and changing learning environments across levels in complex social systems This demands attention to new kinds of diversity in who what and how we study and to the issues raised to develop coherent accounts of how learning occurs Ranging from schools to families and across all levels of formal schooling from pre school through higher education this ideology can be supported in a multitude of social contexts The papers in these conference proceedings respond to the call Teaching Science and Investigating Environmental Issues with Geospatial Technology James

MaKinster, Nancy Trautmann, Michael Barnett, 2013-11-05 The emerging field of using geospatial technology to teach science and environmental education presents an excellent opportunity to discover the ways in which educators use research grounded pedagogical commitments in combination with their practical experiences to design and implement effective teacher professional development projects Often missing from the literature are in depth explicit discussions of why and how educators choose to provide certain experiences and resources for the teachers with whom they work and the resulting outcomes The first half of this book will enable science and environmental educators to share the nature and structure of large scale professional development projects while discussing the theoretical commitments that undergird their work Many chapters will include temporal aspects that present the ways in which projects change over time in response to evaluative

research and practical experience In the second half of the book faculty and others whose focus is on national and international scales will share the ways in which they are working to meet the growing needs of teachers across the globe to incorporate geospatial technology into their science teaching These efforts reflect the ongoing conversations in science education geography and the geospatial industry in ways that embody the opportunities and challenges inherent to this field This edited book will serve to define the field of teacher professional development for teaching science using geospatial technology As such it will identify short term and long term objectives for science environmental and geography educators involved in these efforts As a result this book will provide a framework for future projects and research in this exciting and growing field

Environmental Education and Advocacy Edward A. Johnson, Michael J. Mappin, 2005-03-03 Environmental education has often blurred the distinction between ecological science and environmental advocacy Growing public awareness of environmental problems and desire for action may be contributing to this blurring There is a need to clarify the distinction between the role of ecological science and the role of social and political values for the environment within environmental education This book addresses this need by examining the changing perspectives of ecology in education and the changing perspectives of education in environmental education Guidelines are provided for assessing the science and education perspectives within environmental education along with suggested frameworks for development of programs and resources that integrate current science education and action This book will be of interest to environmental educators ecologists interested in environmental education and curriculum and resource developers

Designing Greenways Paul Cawood Hellmund, Daniel Smith, 2013-03-05 How are greenways designed What situations lead to their genesis and what examples best illustrate their potential for enhancing communities and the environment Designing greenways is a key to protecting landscapes allowing wildlife to move freely and finding appropriate ways to bring people into nature This book brings together examples from ecology conservation biology aquatic ecology and recreation design to illustrate how greenways function and add value to ecosystems and human communities alike Encompassing everything from urban trail corridors to river floodplains to wilderness like linkages greenways preserve or improve the integrity of the landscape not only by stemming the loss of natural features but also by engendering new natural and social functions From 19th century parks and parkways to projects still on the drawing boards Designing Greenways is a fascinating introduction to the possibilities and pitfalls involved in these ambitious projects As towns and cities look to greenways as a new way of reconciling man and nature designers and planners will look to Designing Greenways as an invaluable compendium of best practices
