Violence Against Children In The Family And The Community:

Violence Against Children in the Family and the Community Penelope K. Trickett, Cynthia J. Schellenbach, 1998 Children in the United States experience violence in many forms They are the victims of physical and sexual abuse within their families they witness battering of and by their parents and they experience or witness violence in their schools and communities Poor children are especially at risk for experiencing these forms of violence Recently considerable research has accumulated documenting the psychological impact of such violence on children s development This book brings together in one volume the latest findings from researchers on violence with the aim of integrating findings and pointing out gaps in our knowledge that future research will need to address The book also describes promising interventions that have helped children already damaged by violence and suggests strategies for preventing violence before it occurs The book is divided into five sections that cover developmental consequences causes interventions prevention and future research and public policy issues This volume will be a resource for developmental psychologists violence researchers social workers and policy makers PsycINFO Database Record c 2004 APA all rights reserved Violence Against Children Luísa Fernanda Habigzang, Alex Sandro Gomes Pessoa, Silvia Renata Lordello, 2025-07-30 This book shows how the Bioecological Theory of Human Development BTHD can be applied to the study of violence against children Originally developed by Urie Bronfenbrenner to understand human development in general BTHD offers a powerful framework to carry out a systemic analysis of the multiple levels of risk and protective factors associated with violence against children and provides the tools to develop interventions that go beyond the focus on the individual addressing wider contextual factors The chapters of this book present various typologies of violence that can manifest in family school community institutional and structural contexts viewed through the lens of the Bioecological Theory of Human Development The key concepts of Person Process Context and Time serve as the foundation for a critical analysis of the factors that render children vulnerable to experiences of violence The chapters also aim to showcase research and interventions developed by psychologists who have dedicated their work to studying violence against children in a variety of different contexts Violence Against Children Contributions of the Bioecological Theory of Human Development to Research and Intervention will be of interest to researchers in fields such as developmental psychology education and social work who are interested in understanding violence from a systemic theoretical perspective culturally situated within various realities It will also be a useful resource for professionals working with children victim of violence such as social workers teachers and mental health practitioners empowering them to engage in ethically and politically committed actions that drive the necessary social transformations for effectively combating violence against children worldwide regardless of gender race ethnicity social class religion or citizenship status The original manuscript of this book was written in Portuguese and translated into English with the help of artificial intelligence A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content Violence against Children in Kenya Alphonse C. L.

Omolo,2014 Children in Kenya continue to suffer diverse types of violence against them despite the fact that Kenyan laws are prohibiting violence and various prevention measures exist In order to achieve effective prevention of violence adequate knowledge of risk factors is imperative In Kenya such knowledge is lacking and there is limited attention given to the multifaceted nature of the social environment in which children grow up and how such environments aggravate violence against children as well as hinder prevention measures This qualitative research applied the ecological model of socialisation of Urie Bronfenbrenner as its theoretical and analytical framework in examining risk factors and consequences responses and projects In assessing what is being done to prevent violence against children in Kenya the author reviews existing projects and policies that shape prevention measures including the possible influence of international conventions He also analyses diverse sets of ideas attitudes philosophies and practices that explain the similar and the different notions of childhood in African and in Western settings Exploring the social construction of violence the author examines ideas and discourses that explain the heterogeneous characteristics of violence and how their understanding occurrence and severity vary from culture to culture

Alphonse C L Omolo born 1966 in Kisumu Kenya studied Childhood Sociology of Childhood and Children s Rights at the Institute of Education University of London He completed his doctoral degree Dr phil at the Faculty for Philosophy and Educational Research in the Field of Comparative Education at the Ruhr University Bochum Germany in 2014 He has extended experience and worked in different capacities in street children and other children s programmes in Kenya and Tanzania between 1987 and 2010

Violence Against Children Gertrud Lenzer,2017-11-28 Violence Against Children adopts in its title the exhortation of Nobel Laureate Amartya Sen Making Human Rights Real which also represents the leitmotif of the book It examines the prevalence of violence against children in Africa the Asia Pacific Region Europe Latin America and the Caribbean and in the United States and explores major ways of its prevention Making human rights real engenders the challenge of helping all children to be free from violence and to lead a life replete with genuine nurture and the elimination of all violence Only in this manner will the goal of the United Nations 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development target 16.2 be achieved and the child as a rights bearing individual realized in her his fullness The specially commissioned chapters that make up the volume have been written by renowned scholars researchers and advocates They coalesce to provide an overview of the challenges facing children exposed to violence worldwide and they advance discussions of the measures which are available and necessary for the prevention of violence against children The book is intended for policy makers researchers and students of the social sciences and human rights who are interested in ending all the widespread maltreatment of children in our societies and our time
