Vitruvius Writing The Body Of Architecture

Vitruvius Writing The Body Of Architecture:

Vitruvius Indra Kagis McEwen, 2004-09-17 A historical study of Vitruvius's De architectura showing that his purpose in writing the whole body of architecture was shaped by the imperial Roman project of world domination. Vitruvius's De architectura is the only major work on architecture to survive from classical antiquity and until the eighteenth century it was the text to which all other architectural treatises referred. While European classicists have focused on the factual truth of the text itself, English speaking architects and architectural theorists have viewed it as a timeless source of valuable metaphors. Departing from both perspectives, Indra Kagis McEwen examines the work's meaning and significance in its own time. Vitruvius dedicated De architectura to his patron Augustus Caesar, the first Roman emperor whose rise to power inspired its composition near the end of the first century B.C. McEwen argues that the imperial project of world dominion shaped Vitruvius's purpose in writing what he calls the whole body of architecture. Specifically, Vitruvius's aim was to present his discipline as the means for making the emperor's body congruent with the imagined body of the world he would rule. Each of the book's four chapters treats a different Vitruvian body. Chapter 1, The Angelic Body, deals with the book as a book in terms of contemporary events and thought, particularly Stoicism and Stoic theories of language. Chapter 2, The Herculean Body, addresses the book's and its author's relation to Augustus, whose double Vitruvius means the architect to be. Chapter 3, The Body Beautiful, discusses the relation of proportion and geometry to architectural beauty and the role of beauty in forging the new world order. Finally, Chapter 4, The Body of the King, explores the nature and unprecedented extent of Augustan building programs. Included is an examination of the famous statue of Augustus from Prima Porta, sculpted soon after the appearance of De architectura.

All the King's Horses Indra Kagis McEwen, 2023-04-11 How the Italian Renaissance reinvented the power of princes by rediscovering Vitruvius and his architecture and justified their right to rule. In Vitruvius Writing the Body of Architecture, Indra Kagis McEwen argued that Vitruvius's first century BC treatise De architectura was informed by imperial ideology, giving architecture a role in the imperial Roman project of world rule. In her sequel All the King's Horses, McEwen focuses on the early Renaissance reception of Vitruvius's thought, beginning with Petrarch, a political reception preoccupied with legitimating existing power structures. During this age of princes, various signori took over Italian towns and cities, displacing independent communes and their avowed ideal of the common good. In turn, architects taking up Vitruvius's mantle designed for these princes with the intent of making their power manifest and celebrating the rule of one. Through meticulous descriptions of the work of architects and artists from Leon Battista Alberti to Leonardo da Vinci, McEwen explains how architecture became an instrument of control in the early Italian Renaissance. She shows how architectural magnificence supported claims to power, a phenomenon best displayed in one of the era's most prominent monumental themes: the equestrian statue of a prince, in which the horse became an emanation of the will of the rider, its strength the expression of his strength.

Architecture and the Body, Science and Culture Kim Sexton, 2017-10-20 The relationship of architecture to the human body is a centuries long and complex one but not always symmetrical This book opens a space for historians of the visual arts archaeologists architects and digital humanities professionals to reflect upon embodiment spatiality science and architecture in premodern and modern cultural contexts Architecture and the Body Science and Culture poses one overarching question How does a period s understanding of bodies as objects of science impinge upon architectural thought and design The answers are sophisticated interdisciplinary explorations of theory technology symbolism medicine violence psychology deformity and salvation and they have unexpected and fascinating implications for architectural design and history The new research published in this volume reinvigorates the Western survey style trajectory from Archaic Greece to post war Europe with scientifically framed body centred provocations By adding the third factor science to the architecture and body equation this book presents a nuanced appreciation for architectural creativity and its embeddedness in other sets of social institutional and political relationships In so doing it spatializes body theory and ties it to the experience of the built environment in ways that disturb traditional boundaries between the architectural container and the corporeally contained

On the Ruins of Babel Daniel Leonhard Purdy, 2011-03-15 The eighteenth century struggled to define architecture as either an art or a science the image of the architect as a grand figure who synthesizes all other disciplines within a single master plan emerged from this discourse Immanuel Kant and Johann Wolfgang Goethe described the architect as their equal a genius with godlike creativity For writers from Descartes to Freud architectural reasoning provided a method for critically examining consciousness The architect as philosophers liked to think of him was obligated by the design and construction process to mediate between the abstract and the actual In On the Ruins of Babel Daniel Purdy traces this notion back to its wellspring He surveys the volatile state of architectural theory in the Enlightenment brought on by the newly emerged scientific critiques of Renaissance cosmology then shows how German writers redeployed Renaissance terminology so that harmony unity synthesis foundation and orderliness became states of consciousness rather than terms used to describe the built world Purdy's distinctly new interpretation of German theory reveals how metaphors constitute interior life as an architectural space to be designed constructed renovated or demolished He elucidates the close affinity between Hegel's Romantic aesthetic of space and Daniel Libeskind's deconstruction of monumental architecture in Berlin's Jewish Museum Through a careful reading of Walter Benjamin's writing on architecture as myth Purdy details how classical architecture shaped Benjamin's modernist interpretations of urban life particularly his elaboration on Freud's archaeology of the unconscious Benjamin's essays on dreams and architecture turn the individualist sensibility of the Enlightenment into a collective and mythic identification between humans and buildings
