Prehistoric Adaptation in the American Southwest Rosalind L. Hunter-Anderson, 1986-10-30 This book is about post Pleistocene adaptive change among the aboriginal cultures of the mountains and deserts of Arizona and New Mexico Conceived essentially as a natural science alternative to the prevailing culture history paradigm it offers both a general theoretical framework for interpreting the archaeological record of the American South West and a persuasive evolutionary model for the shift from a hunter gatherer economy to horticulture at the Mogollon Anasazi interface Technical architectural and settlement adaptations are examined and the rise of matrilineality ethnic groupings and clans are modelled using ecological and ethnographic data and the innovative idea of anticipated cultural response In the last part of the book Dr Hunter Anderson evaluates the fit between her model and the archaeological record and argues vigorously for research into the evolution of ethnicity in the adaptive context of regional competition Wild Visions Ben A. Minteer, Mark Klett, Stephen J. Pyne, 2022-01-01 A stunning combination of landscape photography and thematic essays exploring how the concept of wilderness has evolved over time Our ideas of wilderness have evolved dramatically over the past one hundred and fifty years from a view of wild country as an inviolable place apart to one that exists only within the matrix of human activity This shift in understanding has provoked complicated questions about the importance of the wild in American environmentalism as well as new aesthetic expectations as we reframe the wilderness as to some degree a human creation Wild Visions is distinctive in its union of landscape photography and environmental thought a merging of short thematic essays with a striking visual narrative Often the wild is viewed in binary terms either revered as sacred and ecologically pure or dismissed as spoiled by human activities This book portrays wilderness instead as an evolving gamut of understandings a
