Teaching/Writing in Thirdspaces Rhonda C. Grego, Nancy S. Thompson, 2007-12-25 Teaching Writing in Thirdspaces The Studio Approach examines a dynamic approach to teaching composition that reimagines not only the physical space in which writing and learning occurs but also the place occupied by composition in the power structure of universities and colleges In response to financial and programmatic cutbacks at the University of South Carolina in the 1990s authors Rhonda C Grego and Nancy S Thompson used their academic backgrounds in composition and English education along with their personal histories in working class families to look at compositional spaces and places with an eye to challenging the embedded issues of race class and gender within the university hierarchies The result was a supplemental writing program that they called the writing studio The studio model emphasizes individual participation in a small group that allows students to present work they are preparing for outside classes discuss their challenges and refine their ideas with other students and staff facilitators This interactional inquiry is replicated and reinforced by the facilitators who meet in their own small groups to analyze larger patterns possibilities and needs as they arise in their studios Grego and Thompson argue that because the studio is physically and institutionally outside but alongside both students other coursework and the hierarchy of the institution it represents a thirdspace a unique position in which to effect institutional change The focus on interactional inquiry challenges traditional power hierarchies within classrooms and shifts the nature of discourse As a bottom up approach to the development of educational programs within institutions that have different needs demographics and histories the studio model can address a multitude of different institutional needs with little disruption to the curriculum The studio model allows university administrators teachers student aides and students to continually adapt to changing institutional environments with new teaching and learning strategies Teaching Writing in Thirdspaces provides an alternative approach to traditional basic writing courses that can be adopted in educational institutions of all types and at all levels Writing Lesson Level
