

You may be a High Achiever if...

1

You tend to stay optimistic.

High achievers generally have a more positive outlook on life and work. This mindset keeps them focused on goals and achievements. An optimistic attitude helps complete tasks, no matter their complexity.

2

You focus on the outcomes.

High achievers don't focus on how they finish their goals. Instead, they look forward to the end result of their efforts.

3

You are an adaptable and flexible person.

Those with high aspirations can quickly adapt to changes in their schedules or environment. They aren't afraid to use new methods, even if it means starting over again.

4

You are action-oriented.

High achievers don't waste time asking too many questions. Instead, they jump straight to their work. Their goal is to finish tasks on time and push themselves to improve while they do it.

5

You are more organized than messy.

People who display these characteristics make sure to keep their work and home in order. They know that any form of clutter can interfere with their goals. Keeping a clear head and organized space is a must.

6

You tend to seek opportunities everywhere you go.

You might be a high achiever if you take every opportunity that comes your way. This attitude can quickly move people up the professional ladder or offer new prospects.

7

You love learning and seeking out new knowledge.

Another trait of high achievers is that they always seek to expand their knowledge and skill set. For example, the most successful doctors are those who keep learning about the latest developments in their field.

8

You find motivation from within yourself.

Finally, such people don't need outside motivation to set goals and achieve them. They do this on their own, finding the necessary strength from within.

Ariel Kaplan, 2020-05-19 How far would you go to get into the right college? Fans of Becky Albertalli will appreciate this sharp-witted, timely novel about an overachiever who stumbles into the middle of a college admissions scandal. Mischa Abramavicius is a walking, talking, top-scoring, perfectly well-rounded college application in human form. So when she's rejected not only by the Ivies but also by her loathsome safety school, she is shocked and devastated. All the sacrifices her mother made to send her to prep school, the late nights cramming for tests, the blatantly résumé padding, extracurriculars read Students for Sober Driving, the feelings of burnout—all that for nothing. As Mischa grapples with the prospect of an increasingly uncertain future, she questions how this could have happened in the first place. Is it possible that her transcript was hacked? With the help of her best friend and sometimes crush Nate and a group of eccentric techies known as The Ophelia Syndicate, Mischa launches an investigation that will shake the quiet community of Blanchard Prep to its stately brick foundations. In her sophomore novel, A. E. Kaplan cranks the humor to full blast and takes a serious look at the extreme pressure of college admissions. A well-written, intricately plotted and sympathetic portrayal of the pressures that some elite college-bound kids experience during senior year. Kirkus Reviews starred review.
