Athalie Robert W. Chambers,2022-08-10 The mother said nothing. From moment to moment she turned her head on the pillow and gazed down at her new daughter with a curious questioning expression. She had never gazed at any of her other children so uneasily. Even after she fell asleep, the slightly puzzled expression remained as a faint crease between her brows. Her husband, who had been wandering about from the bar to the office, from the office to the veranda, and occasionally entirely around the exterior of the road house, came in on tiptoe and looked rather vacantly at them both. Then he went out again as though he was not sure where he might be going. He was a little man and mild, and he did not look as though he had been created for anything in particular, not even for the purpose of procreation. It was one of those early April days when birds make a great fuss over their vocal accomplishments and the brown earth grows green overnight when the hot spring sun draws vapors from the soil and the characteristic Long Island odour of manure is far too prevalent to please anybody but a native.
