New York Teachers Monographs, Vol. 10 Sidney Marsden Fuerst, 2017-10-22 Excerpt from New York Teachers Monographs Vol 10 June 1908 The IA grade may be divided into unlimited groups but it is best to have about three groups The left backs usually form the first group Added to these left backs are the transfers from other schools and a few bright children who adapt themselves readily to school life and are able to progress gradually The second group is made up of the new arrivals who can absorb the grade work daily in a perfectly normal manner neither too quickly nor too slowly This is generally the largest group About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

New York Teachers' Monographs, Vol. 2 Sidney Marsden Fuerst, 2017-10-21 Excerpt from New York Teachers Monographs Vol 2 June 1900 The method laid down by Mr Prince is as has been stated the most usual method It embraces three steps the writing on a theme by the pupils the marking by the teacher of errors in what the pupils have written the re writing by the pupils of their compositions in such a way as to correct the errors marked by the teacher In practice I have found this method open to the most serious objections The reading of compositions in order to correct errors lays an intolerable burden on the already overburdened grade teacher In this monotonous grind she consumes the energy that should be devoted to the preparation and execution of class work The drudgery for the teacher being so irksome and blighting she is naturally led to diminish the number of compositions written so that the pupil does not receive sufficient practice in writing one composition a week is probably the maximum under this plan while one every fortnight is more nearly the rule At this rate only those endowed with unusual powers of language ever learn to write with facility But when the work of the teacher degenerates into mere drudgery it is apt to become the same for the pupils So it certainly is in this case As the children have no facility in composition the first writing is drudgery as they are required to copy after a lapse of some time what has been corrected by the teacher the copying process becomes more irksome even than the first writing it is always perfunctory and generally abhorred Since this has been the method commonly pursued in the higher grammar grades and in high schools it is little wonder that the colleges find their students at entrance miserably deficient in the writing of English About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
