Chamber of Commerce Sponsors Tables, Chairs For Community

The Albany Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has voted to sponsor the acquisition of new chairs and tables for community use. Under the guidance of a special committee the organization took on the project of obtaining the newly needed fixtures that will be used for club, organizational and individual functions.

Donations are requested to help meet the cost of the 500 new chairs and 50 new tables. Any group or individual wishing to contribute should call Chamber manager Betty Law at the Blood is needed in the Shackelford County account at Merks Blood Bank at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene.

"Doctors will be appreciated," said a spokesman. "And he more your donation is credited to the Shackelford County bank.

Bluebonnet Village Volunteers Make Plan For Programs

Volunteer helpers for Bluebonnet Village met last Friday to map out plans for immediate action, according to the chairman, Mrs. Bruce Wilbanks. About 20 persons were present to get the program started. It began Monday.

"We need about twenty additional helpers," she requested. "We need people who are willing to work person-to-person, who will give a minimum of one hour a week in meetings, writing letters, giving other kinds of personal attention." Response has been good on help with physical therapy, coordinated by Mrs. Billy Green, and quilting sessions headed by Mrs. Bob Green. However, much help is still needed.

If you can give one hour a week to some needy, specified person, please call me," she concluded. "The time you give will be rewarding to you and the person with whom you work."

Mrs. Wilbanks' number is 762-2222.

Depot.

The rules and regulations committee headed by J. M. Chism, met Friday, June 29 to set the guidelines for use of the chairs and tables. The committee agreed on rental terms and set the cost at 50 cents per chair and 25 cents per table for each three-day rental period.

Those groups or individuals donating to the purchase of the fixtures will receive credit on the records for the amount they donate.

There will be a replacement charge in case of damage or loss and the equipment will be supplied on a first come, first served basis.

Letters will be sent to clubs and organizations that might need to use the tables and chairs for meetings, banquets and parties. However, donations from individuals are welcome to help secure this worthwhile community asset.

Requests outside the county will have to be a request with the Chamber manager to be approved by the committee. All interested groups within the county need only to contact the manager.

Drought Conditions Worsen In County

Scattered showers provided some relief for scorching heat-dents in Shackelford County late Monday afternoon and evening after temperatures soared as high as 105 degrees during the previous week, but had little effect on drought conditions still existing within the county.

"Most people don't realize the great economic loss suffered not only by the farmers in this area, but by the county as a whole," commented Johnny Healy, local A&M manager. "Agriculture is the primary industry within the county where there are oil and gas, and ultimately affects the economy of the entire population."

County Agent Lawrence Winkler agreed with Healy, adding that Shackelford County is one of the hardest hit drought areas in the state. The drought has been in way below normal and ranchers have been feeding large portions of their herds to maintain early summer, especially last month when cattle prices were so good.

"I'd say that we're at least 25% below normal carrying capacity because of the lack of grazing land," said Healy.

"Very few ranchers can afford to feed cattle all year round and that's what it's coming to." According to Winkler, most ranchers in Shackelford County are liquidating some of their herds, trying to cut down on numbers, with probably few calf buyers and young stock being supplemented.

"If the drought continues," he said, "we'll probably see some more cattle being forced to market. On the average there's somewhere around 30,000 head of cattle in the county, one to every 18.20 acres. Right now, we're probably down to around 25,000 head." Winkler said that county cattle totals were as low as 22,000 head during the drought in the 50's, with estimates of 27,000 during good years.

"Some strips of land in the county had as much as six inches of rain in the spring," said the county agent. "Good grass in a lot of areas hasn't had time to respond. The hot temperatures and southerly winds have heated up what is left. Also," he continued, "rains have been so scattered that they haven't done a whole lot of good. Many of the stock tanks in the county are very low on water, although some have caught enough to last through the summer."

"It's... and is a good showy rain," said Winkler. "Before the late summer growing season that comes during the last part of August and the early part of September. If there isn't any rain by then, winter growers won't materialize, and we'll see a large number of cattle being sold, even if the ranchers have to take a loss."

Just as dismal as the livestock situation in the crop harvest is and around Shackelford County. "Farmers in the county normally would be harvesting about 30,000 acres of wheat by this time," said Healy. "This year it looks like there'll be about 10,000 to 15,000 acres. All this is partly on the top of my head," emphasized Healy. "Last spring a normal year, the county wide average for wheat is about 18 bushels to the acre. This spring I've seen this season is 14, and I believe that most of it is only 1-2 bushels."

"Using those figures, we're probably taking a loss of well over $1 million on the wheat crop. At an average of 10 bushels to the acre for 30,000 acres, at current market prices of $2.25, gross returns would be around $1,300,000. This year, 10,000 acres of wheat, five bushels to the acre, will bring in about $12,000. That's a pretty conservative estimate, although it is just an estimate," he said.

The same type losses have occurred with corn, reported Healy. The county normally produces about 9,000 acres of corn. "I seriously doubt if we've had more than 1,000 acres this year," commented the A&M officer.

"It's really too early to tell about the milo and cotton crops. Cotton doesn't require as much moisture, of course, but there's a little milo and moisture that it's really hurting the cotton farmers. Most stands in the county are poor, although some on the west side of the county are making good progress."

"We're just now getting the first reports about milo. There was moisture to plant after the rains back in the spring, but the acreage is still way below normal. I appraised some Monday at 350 pounds, normally the average is around 1,400-1,500 pounds."

Irrigated crops in the county are naturally looking better than dryland crops, but the heat is taking its toll there too, according to Winkler. "And there is very little hay," he commented. "Even if we do make some,
