Reading the Modern European Novel since 1900 Daniel R. Schwarz,2018-03-14 An exploration of the modern European novel from a renowned English literature scholar Reading the Modern European Novel since 1900 is an engaging in depth examination of the evolution of the modern European novel Written in Daniel R Schwarz s precise and highly readable style this critical study offers compelling discussions on a wide range of major works since 1900 and examines recurring themes within the context of significant historical events including both World Wars and the Holocaust. The author cites important developments in the evolution of the modern novel and explores how these paradigmatic works of fiction reflect intellectual and cultural history including developments in painting and cinema. Schwarz focuses on narrative complexity, thematic subtlety, and formal originality as well as how novels render historical events and cultural developments. Discussing major works by Proust, Camus, Mann, Kafka, Grass, Di Lampedusa, Bassani, Kertész, Pamuk, Kundera, Saramago, Müller, and Ferrante, Schwarz explores how these often experimental masterworks pay homage to their major predecessors discussed in Schwarz's ground-breaking Reading the European Novel to 1900, even while proposing radical departures from realism in their approach to time and space, their testing the limits of language, and their innovative ways of rendering the human psyche. Written for teachers and students by a highly acclaimed scholar and including valuable study questions, Reading the Modern European Novel since 1900 offers a guide for a deeper understanding of how these original modern masters respond to both the past and present.

In Search of Elena Ferrante Karen Bojar, 2018-07-17 Elena Ferrante, named one of the 100 most influential people in 2016 by Time magazine, is best known for her Neapolitan novels which explore such themes as the complexity of female friendship, the joys and constraints of motherhood, the impact of changing gender roles, the pervasiveness of male violence, the struggle for upward mobility, and the impact of the feminist movement. Ferrante's three novellas encompass similar themes focusing on moments of extreme tension in women's lives. This study analyzes the integration of political themes and feminist theory in Ferrante's works, including men's entrapment in a sexist script written for them from time immemorial. Her decision to write under a pseudonym is examined along with speculation that Rome-based translator Anita Raja and her husband Domenico Starnone are coauthors of Ferrante's books.

Knowledge-Making from a Postgraduate Writers' Circle Lucia Thesen, 2024-06-11 This book seeks to disrupt the narrative about the process of academic writing and the written products which are currently valued in the university by juxtaposing the messiness and deletions of the writing process with the hegemonic imaginary of what research writing should look like. The author uses writing as both a subject and a method of enquiry in an ethnographic deep dive into her long-term engagement with a postgraduate writers' circle in an elite South African university. The book engages with growing global interest in the geopolitics of research writing and its relationship to patterns of epistemic privilege, drawing on current work on decolonising knowledge production. It opens a space to widen and deepen how we imagine the relationship between writing and knowledge making.
