Three Famines Starvation And Politics:

Three Famines Thomas Keneally, 2012-09-04 Through the lens of three of the most devastating food crises in modern history the Great Famine of British ruled Ireland the great famine of British ruled Bengal in 1943 and the string of famines that plagued Ethiopia during the 1970s and 1980s Booker Prize winning author Thomas Keneally vividly evokes the terrible cost of mass starvation at the level of the individual who starves and the nation that watches Famine is widely misunderstood as a completely natural catastrophe Keneally recounts that while the triggers crop pestilence and drought are natural the political and ideological choices that prolong famine are man made Government neglect and individual venality not food shortages are historically the causes of sustained widespread hunger In Ireland British authorities ignored the existence of a food crisis while the famished fed on diseased cattle and human remains In Bengal where over four million starved to death Field Marshal Archibald Wavell's reports of people dying in Calcutta's streets and demands for relief resulted in little more than a mocking cable from Winston Churchill asking why if food was so scarce hadn't Gandhi died yet In Ethiopia Mengistu Haile Mariam arranged for 400 000 bottles of whisky to ship to Addis Ababa from Britain to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the revolution that put him in power while one person died every twenty minutes in Korea These three famines are stark examples of how throughout history racial preconceptions administrative neglect and incompetence have been more lethal than the initiating blights or crop failures Keneally's startling narrative history is a sobering warning to the authorities in charge of mercy in our time to stop making choices that feed famine instead of the starving

Three Famines Thomas Keneally, 2011-08-30 Famine may be triggered by nature but its outcome arises from politics and ideology In Three Famines award winning author Thomas Keneally uncovers the troubling truth that sustained widespread hunger is historically the outcome of government neglect and individual venality Through the lens of three of the most disastrous famines in modern history the potato famine in Ireland the famine in Bengal in 1943 and the string of famines that plagued Ethiopia in the 1970s and 1980s Keneally shows how ideology mindsets of governments racial preconceptions and administrative incompetence were ultimately more lethal than the initiating blights or crop failures In this compelling narrative Keneally recounts the histories of these events while vividly evoking the terrible cost of famine at the level of the individual who starves and the nation that withers

The Politics of Famine in European History and Memory Ingrid de Zwart, Miguel Ángel del Arco Blanco, 2025-05-15 This is the first book to bring together groundbreaking scholarship focusing on the various ways in which famines result from political decision making and how the threat occurrence relief or memory of famine is instrumentalized as a political and military tool Contributions to this volume reveal the complexities variations and motivations behind the instrumentalization of famine by political actors and regimes and how the politics of perpetrating hunger and the politics of relieving it have often been intertwined They also address how famine legacies have been subsequently politicized in public debates educational practices and popular media and how these socially and politically constructed memories and myths in turn have shaped broader narratives about hunger and humanitarianism both in history and today The Politics of Famine in European History and Memory provides a crucial resource for scholars and students from all disciplines interested in the study of famines as well as those interested in the history of war and troubled pasts more generally

Three Famines Tom Keneally, Thomas Keneally, 2011 A standout history told with Tom Keneally panache This is the story of three great famines The first is an Gorta M r the great hunger of Ireland which began in 1846 and whose end date is a matter of debate The second is the less well known but more deadly famine that struck Bengal in 1843 The third is the Ethiopian famine which first sprung up in lethal form in the 1970s under Emperor Haile Selassie and then again under the brutal dictator Mengistu in the 1980s Keneally himself visited Eritrea in 1984 to see the effects of this grave event In those who suffered these famines in those who denied their suffering in those who propounded theories to excuse it in those who against the wishes of each government told the world what was happening and in those who tried to relieve it there is a remarkable continuity of impulse and experience and dilemma Though these famines are diverse they are in many ways as similar as if they were related by DNA or a malignant force of fallibility Tom Keneally shares these three shocking histories with his customary penetrating wisdom and he presents a controversial theory in his utterly compelling narrative in all three famines ideology mindsets of governments racial preconceptions and administrative incompetence were ultimately more lethal than the initiating blights the loss of potatoes or rice or the grain named teff The Oxford Handbook of Agricultural History Jeannie M. Whayne, 2024 Agricultural history has enjoyed a rebirth in recent years in part because the agricultural enterprise promotes economic and cultural connections in an era that has become ever more globally focused but also because of agriculture's potential to lead to conflicts over precious resources The Oxford Handbook of Agricultural History reflects this rebirth and examines the wide reaching implications of agricultural issues featuring essays that touch on the green revolution the development of the Atlantic slave plantation the agricultural impact of the American Civil War the rise of scientific and corporate agriculture and modern exploitation of agricultural labor Mobilize Food! Eleanor Boyle, 2022-05-24 Faced with a climate crisis can people commit to action Faced with evidence that our agriculture and our diets fuel that crisis producing significant greenhouse gases can we muster the vision to produce and consume food differently Transforming food systems to meet a threat has been done before as revealed in Mobilize Food Wartime Inspiration for Environmental Victory Today The book recounts the dramatic story of World War II Britain its Ministry of Food and its millions of citizens who fought for their democracy partly by growing more wasting less and sharing scarce foods equitably so that everyone could feed themselves during an emergency and beyond Highly relevant to today as we fight our battles for healthy environments and a liveable global climate Mobilize Food offers strategies for action and hope in our time It shows that entire populations can remake food systems to be sustainable healthy and fair and that just as people in the past were capable of greatness so are we A History of the Global Economy Colin White, 2018-11-30 Providing an exceptional overview and analysis of the global economy from the origins of Homo sapiens to the present day Colin White explores our past to help understand our economic future He veers away from traditional Eurocentric approaches providing a truly global scope for readers The main themes include the creative innovativeness of humans and how this generates economic progression the common economic pathway trodden by all societies and the complementary relationship between government and the market Which Side Are You On? Elaine Harger, 2016-02-22 Shattering any idea that librarianship is a politically neutral realm this insider's account of seven debates from the floor of the American Library Association Council illustrates the mechanisms the governing body used to maintain the status quo on issues like racism government surveillance and climate change At play in each debate are rules of parliamentary procedure appeals to authority denial and chastisement of librarians who pushed the ALA to make real its commitments to human rights and social justice Providing a fascinating look at the Council's inner workings the author parses debates concerning anti-apartheid boycotts partnerships between ALA McDonald's and the Boy Scouts of America spying by the National Security Agency censorship in Israel and the Occupied Territories fossil fuel industry divestment and the recent revival by ALA's Office of Intellectual Freedom of the infamous film The Speaker Marriage Markets June Carbone, Naomi Cahn, 2014-04-01 There was a time when the phrase American family conjured up a single specific image a breadwinner dad a homemaker mom and their 2-5 kids living comfortable lives in a middle class suburb Today that image has been shattered due in part to skyrocketing divorce rates single parenthood and increased out of wedlock births But whether it is conservatives bemoaning the wages of moral decline and women's liberation or progressives celebrating the result of women's greater freedom and changing sexual mores most Americans fail to identify the root factor driving the changes economic inequality that is remaking the American family along class lines In Marriage Markets June Carbone and Naomi Cahn examine how macroeconomic forces are transforming our most intimate and important spheres and how working class and lower income families have paid the highest price Just like health education and seemingly every other advantage in life a stable two parent home has become a luxury that only the well off can afford The best educated and most prosperous have the most stable families while working class families have seen the greatest increase in relationship instability Why is this so The book provides the answer greater economic inequality has profoundly changed marriage markets the way men and women match up when they search for a life partner It has produced a larger group of high income men than women written off the men at the bottom because of chronic unemployment incarceration and substance abuse and left a larger group of women with a smaller group of comparable men in the middle The failure to see marriage as a market affected by supply and demand has obscured any meaningful analysis of the way that societal changes influence culture Only policies that redress the balance between men and women through greater access to education stable employment and opportunities for social mobility can produce a culture that encourages commitment and investment in family life A rigorous and enlightening account of why American families have changed so much in recent decades Marriage Markets cuts through the ideological and moralistic rhetoric that drives our current debate It offers critically needed solutions for a problem that will haunt America for generations to come Prescription for an Ailing World Wayne Allen, 2017-09-29 In 1924 an Australian minister observed that while the world may be getting better off the world is not getting better Almost one hundred years have passed and little has changed No doubt people today are healthier and wealthier than ever before But people do not seem to be any more virtuous New technologies have changed the way people live but violence torture terrorism cruelty deception dishonesty and disrespect continue to threaten how well people live Wayne Allen argues that while humanity may be ailing it is not beyond treatment and cure By embracing ten essential principles rooted in the Bible and putting them into practice it is possible to make people better Allen takes the reader through a tour of the sad state of moral health of humanity and suggests a remedy With remarkable humor and sharp insight Allen will bring readers to an appreciation of how the world can be transformed
