Humanity is deeply committed to living along the world's shores but a catastrophic storm like Sandy which took hundreds of lives and caused many billions of dollars in damages shines a bright light at how costly and vulnerable life on a shoreline can be. Taking Chances offers a wide-ranging exploration of the diverse challenges of Sandy and asks if this massive event will really change how coastal living and development is managed. Bringing together leading researchers including biologists, urban planners, utilities experts and climatologists among others, Taking Chances illuminates reactions to the dangers revealed by Sandy. Focusing on New Jersey, New York and other hard-hit areas, the contributors explore whether Hurricane Sandy has indeed transformed our perceptions of coastal hazards if we have made radically new plans in response to Sandy and what we think should be done over the long run to improve coastal resilience. Surprisingly, one essay notes that while a large majority of New Jerseyans identified Sandy with climate change and favored carefully assessing the likelihood of damage from future storms before rebuilding the Shore, their political leaders quickly poured millions into reconstruction. Indeed, much here is disquieting. One contributor points out that investors scared off from further investments on the shore are quickly replaced by new investors sustaining or increasing the overall human exposure to risk. Likewise, a study of the Gowanus Canal area of Brooklyn shows that even after Sandy swamped the area with toxic flood waters, plans to convert abandoned industrial lots around the canal into high-density condominiums went on undeterred. By contrast, utilities, emergency officials and others who routinely make long-term plans have changed operations in response to the storm and provide examples of adaptation in the face of climate change. Will Sandy be a tipping point in coastal policy debates or simply dismissed as a once-in-a-century anomaly? This thought-provoking collection of essays in Taking Chances makes an important contribution to this debate. TriBlackAlete Siphiwe Baleka, 2013-02-15. When I watch ITU and Ironman triathlons on television and the Internet, I rarely see any black people and never do I see a black triathlete, pro or age group winner. And being a national champion swimmer and generally a competitive athlete, it bothers me. How can I or a ten-year-old black kid visualize being the champion if there's never been a visual before? Well, I just can't settle for that. So this year, I'm on a quest to become the first ever TriBlackAlete to win a USAT age group national championship. And with a good

Ironman performance in South Africa maybe I can provide the missing visual That would be something The Teachers Calendar 2011-2012 Editors of Chase's Calendar of Events,2011-05-11 The most authoritative and comprehensive calendar reference for teachers revised annually to keep readers up to date Offers unique facts important holidays and major anniversaries in a handy day by day calendar format New to this edition is a blog that will feature content from the book fresh ideas for incorporating information into curriculum and occasional guest entries by some of our other authors on the teacher resource list Written Space in the Latin West, 200 BC to AD 300 Gareth Sears,Peter Keegan,Ray Laurence,2013-07-18 This volume explores the creation of written spaces through the accretion of monumental inscriptions and non official graffiti in the Latin speaking West between c 200 BC and AD 300 The shift to an epigraphic culture demonstrates new mentalities regarding the use of language the relationship between local elites and the population and between local elites and the imperial power The creation of both official and non official inscriptions is one of the most recognisable facets of the Roman city The chapters of this book consider why urban populations created these written spaces and how these spaces in turn affected those urban civilisations They also examine how these inscriptions interacted to create written spaces that could inculcate a sense of Roman ness into urban populations whilst also acting as a means of differentiating communities from each other The volume includes new approaches to the study of political entities social institutions graffiti and painting and the differing trajectories of written spaces in the cities of Roman Africa Italy Spain and Gaul Congressional Record United States. professionals and a good number of high quality publications Our volume however with its unique intercultural character and its explicit focus on appropriation and contestation of religious expertise in the Imperial Era is substantially different Unlike the rather narrow focus of earlier studies of civic priests the papers presented here examine a wider range of religious professionals their dynamic interaction with established religious authorities and institutions and their contributions to religious innovation in the ancient Mediterranean world from the late Hellenistic period through to Late Antiquity from the City of Rome to mainland Greece Asia Minor Syria and Egypt from Greek civic practice to ancient Judaism A further advantage of our volume is the wide range of media of transmission taken into account Our contributors look at both old and new materials which derive not only from literary sources but also from papyri inscriptions and material culture Above all this volume assesses critically convenient terminological usage and offers a unique insight into a rich gamut of ancient Mediterranean religious specialists
