War And The Media Reporting Conflict 247:

War and the Media Daya Kishan Thussu, Des Freedman, 2003-05-16 No book is more timely than this collection which analyses brilliantly the Western media's relentless absorption into the designs of dominant rapacious power John Pilger A most timely book with many valuable insights Martin Bell O B E It has long been known that the outcome of war is deeply influenced by the battle to win hearts and minds This book provides a stimulating set of perspectives which combine the analyses of prominent academics with the experiences of leading journalists Professor Tom Woodhouse University of Bradford This volume represents an all star cast of authors who have a tremendous amount of knowledge about media and world conflict One of its strengths is that it doesn't focus entirely narrowly on media but puts the discussion of media issues in the context of changes in the world order in military doctrine Professor Daniel C Hallin University of California This book comes just in time A coherent and wide ranging collection of data analyses and insights that help our understanding of the complex interaction between communication and conflict A major intellectual contribution to critical thinking about the early 21st century Cees J Hamelink Professor International Communication University of Amsterdam With what new tools do governments manage the news in order to prepare us for conflict Are the media responsible for turning conflict into infotainment Is reporting gender specific How do journalists view their role in covering distant wars This book critically examines the changing contours of media coverage of war and considers the complexity of the relationship between mass media and governments in wartime Assessing how far the political cultural and professional contexts of media coverage have been affected by 9 11 and its aftermath the volume also explores media representations of the War on Terrorism from regional and international perspectives including new actors such as the Qatar based Al Jazeera the pan Arabic television network One key theme of the book is how new information and communication technologies are influencing the production distribution and reception of media messages In an age of instant global communication and round the clock news powerful governments have refined their public relations machinery particularly in the way warfare is covered on television to market their version of events effectively to their domestic as well as international viewing public Transnational in its intellectual scope and in perspectives War and the Media includes essays from internationally known academics along with contributions from media professionals working for leading broadcasters such as BBC World and CNN Global Crisis Reporting Cottle, Simon, 2008-11-01 From climate change to the global war on terror from forced migration to humanitarian disasters these are just some of the global crises addressed in this accessible ground breaking book For the first time the author examines how why and to what extent these are diverse threats to humanity conveyed in today's news media The politics of war reporting Tim Markham, 2013-07-19 The politics of war reporting Authority authenticity and morality challenges the assumptions that reporters and their audiences have about the way the journalistic trade operates and how it sees the world It unpacks the taken for granted aspects of the lives of war correspondents exposing the principles of interaction and valorisation that usually go unacknowledged Is journalistic authority really only about doing the job well Do the ethics of war reporting emerge simply from the stuff of journalism This book asks why it is that the authoritative reporter increasingly needs to appear authentic and that success depends not only on getting things right but being the right sort of journalist This in turn depends on the uncalculating mastery of practices both before and during a journalist's career This book includes interviews with war correspondents and others with an active stake in the field and combines them with the critical sociology of Pierre Bourdieu to construct a political phenomenology of war reporting the power relations and unspoken rules of the game underpinning the representation of conflict and suffering by the media It considers the recent phenomena of pooling and embedding journalists as well as the impact of new technologies and asks what changes in the journalistic area can tell us about authority authenticity and morality in the cultural industries more broadly Interdisciplinary in its approach The Politics of War Reporting will be of interest to scholars and students in the fields of media and cultural studies sociology and political theory

Conflicted Isaac Blacksin, 2024-07-02 How is popular knowledge of war shaped by the stories we consume what are the boundaries of this knowledge and how are these boundaries policed or contested by journalists producing knowledge from war zones Based on years of fieldwork in Iraq Syria Lebanon Afghanistan and Ukraine Conflicted challenges normative conceptions of war by revealing how representational authority comes to be Turning the lens on journalists from The New York Times The Washington Post The Wall Street Journal and other prominent publications Isaac Blacksin shows why news coverage of contemporary conflict widely presumed to function as a critique of excessive violence instead serves to sanction official rationales for war Blacksin argues that journalism's humanitarian frame now hegemonic in conflict coverage serves to depoliticize and remoralize war transforming war from an effect of policy on populations to a matter of violence against the innocent Exploring the tension between experience and expression in conditions of violence and tracking how journalists respond to dominant expectations of reality Conflicted tells the story of war reporters and the consequences of their convergence As new wars and new reportage continue to shape our understanding of armed conflict this book makes visible both the power and the particularity of war reportage

Media Strategy and Military Operations in the 21st Century Michal Shavit, 2016-07-15 This book applies the concept of mediatization to the contemporary dynamic between war media and society with a focus on the Israel Defence Forces IDF Since the beginning of the 21st century the IDF has undergone an intensive process of mediatization that has transformed the media into an interpretative grid for many of its military activities and increasingly utilized media to garner public support and construct civilian perceptions of conflict and security through media activity and strategy This process can be divided into four distinct chronological phases in accordance with the operational challenges confronted by the IDF during this period from the Al Aqsa Intifada of 2000 through Israeli unilateral disengagement from Gaza in 2005 and the second Lebanon war of 2006 to the series of Gaza confrontations of 2008 2014 The work shows how the IDF's media policy evolved from a narrow perception of its role and separation between operational and media actions to a cohesive and coherently articulated media strategy that is increasingly intertwined with military action and operational strategy and a vital component of strategic military aims and objectives This strategic stance has led the IDF to adopt a global media perspective using the most advanced new media platforms designed to influence public opinion and improve national narratives both in Israel and the international community By applying the concept of mediatization to the Israeli case this book fills a research lacuna and offers a new prism for the study of media military relations in contemporary conflicts The book will be of much interest to students of civil military relations strategic studies Middle Eastern Studies media and communication studies sociology and IR in general

Cultural Citizenship Toby Miller, 2007 What does it mean to be a citizen today in an age of unbridled consumerism terrorism militarism and multinationalism In this passionate and dazzling book Toby Miller dares to answer this question with the depth of thought it deserves Fast moving and far ranging Cultural Citizenship blends fact theory observation and speculation in a way that continually startles and engages the reader Although he is unabashedly liberal in his politics Miller is anything but narrow minded He looks at media coverage of September 11th and the Iraq invasion as well as infotainment such as Food and Weather channels to see how U S TV is serving its citizens as part of the global commodity chain Repeatedly revealing the crushing grip of the invisible hand of television Miller shows us what we have given up in our drive to acquire and to belong For far too long cultural citizenship has been a concept invoked without content With the publication of this book it has at last been given flesh and substance

War and the Media Daya Kishan Thussu, 2003 With instant global communication and 24 7 rolling news images of war and conflict fill television screens around the world This book assesses the effects of 9 11 and its aftermath on the political cultural and professional contexts of news The volume explores media representations of the War on Terrorism and looks at the emergence of new players such as

Al Jazeera Other key themes include the blurring of information with entertainment gender dimensions of news and the role of new media technologies in communicating conflict Terrorism TV Stacy Takacs, 2012-04-30 The Fox TV series 24 might have been in production long before its premier just two months after 9 11 but its storyline and that of many other television programs has since become inextricably embedded in the nation s popular consciousness This book marks the first comprehensive survey and analysis of War on Terror themes in post 9 11 American television critiquing those shows that either blindly or intentionally supported the Bush administration s security policies Stacy Takacs focuses on the role of entertainment programming in building a national consensus favoring a War on Terror taking a close look at programs that comment both directly and allegorically on the post 9 11 world In show after show she chillingly illustrates how popular television helped organize public feelings of loss fear empathy and self love into narratives supportive of a controversial and unprecedented war Takacs examines a spectrum of program genres talk shows reality programs sitcoms police procedurals male melodramas war narratives to uncover the recurrent cultural themes that helped convince Americans to invade Afghanistan and Iraq and compromise their own civil liberties Spanning the past decade of the ongoing conflict she reviews not only key touchstones of post 9 11 popular culture such as 24 Rescue Me and Sleeper Cell but also less remarked upon but relevant series like JAG Off to War Six Feet Under and Jericho She also considers voices of dissent that have emerged through satirical offerings like The Daily Show and science fiction series such as Lost and Battlestar Galactica Takacs dissects how the War on Terror has been broadcast into our living rooms in programs that routinely offer simplistic answers to important questions Who exactly are we fighting Why do they hate us and she examines the climate of fear and paranoia they ve created Unlike cultural analyses that view the government s courting of Hollywood as a conspiracy to manipulate the masses her book considers how economic and industry considerations complicate state media relations throughout the era Terrorism TV offers fresh insight into how American television directly and indirectly reinforced the Bush administration s security agenda and argues for the continued importance of the medium as a tool of collective identity formation It is an essential guide to the televisual landscape of American consciousness in the first decade of the twenty first century

Killing the Messenger Herbert N. Foerstel, 2006-03-30 Killing the Messenger reveals the dangerous new face of war and journalism Covering armed conflicts has always been dangerous business but in the past press heroes like Ernie Pyle and Edward R Murrow faced only the danger of random bullets or bombs Today s war correspondent is actually in the cross hairs a target of combatants on all sides of conflicts In their own words correspondents describe the new dangers they face and attempt to explain why they are targeted Killing the Messenger reveals the dangerous new face of war and journalism Covering armed conflicts has always been dangerous business but in the past press heroes like Ernie Pyle and Edward R Murrow faced only the danger of random bullets or bombs Today s war correspondent is actually in the cross hairs a target of combatants on all sides of conflicts In this book correspondents describe the new dangers they face and attempt to explain why they are targeted Is it simply that modern combatants are more brutal than in the past or has journalism changed making correspondents players rather than observers in modern warfare Extended interviews with correspondents who have been abducted and tortured during Middle East conflicts shed chilling light on this new face of war These journalists who have paid dearly to bring first hand images of war to the public offer some surprising insights into the nature and motivation of their kidnappers and the reasons why reporters are targeted They display no self pity and little inclination to blame anyone other than themselves At the same time they are candid in describing the violence within Iraq and without Ways to reduce the risks for reporters are discussed but these editors and correspondents suggest that short of withdrawing into isolated and protected enclaves they may be facing an indefinite escalation of violence against journalists
